First U.S. Spaceman To Get Hero's Tribute In Nation's Capital Monday

Shepard Gets Tests, Rest After Feat

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Pioneer U. S. astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. rested in a hospital Friday night from the ordeal of his rocket ride 115 miles into space. Before him was a hero's welcome in the nation's capital.

But Friday night he relaxed and for the next two days he will face exhaustive tests by doctors and psychologists who want to drain this initial space experience for all the knowledge it's worth.

PREPARE WELCOME

Then Monday, he will be welcomed at the White House by President Kennedy—and he already has an offer of a ticker tape parade in New York City at his convenience.

He slept Friday night at the hospital at the Project Mercury medical holding facility on Grand Bahama Island, 155 miles from where he was plucked from the sea by helicopters from the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain.

His trip 115 miles up in space, marked by brutal pressures and a mystic five minutes of weightlessness, was the first for an American and a perfect flight that gave the United States a mighty stride forward in the space race with the Soviet Union.

"Boy, what a ride," he said on landing. And, "What a beautiful sight," he said at the peak of the 15-minute flight.

Shepard, a veteran Navy test pilot, took manual control of his craft during the brief ride through space, operating the steam jets which turn it around for proper reentry attitude.

But he was not really "flying" the vehicle as a pilot flies a plane. His speed and direction were determined by the speed and direction of the Redstone booster. There was nothing he could do to change his bullet-like trajectory.

And if he made a mistake, but in control's probably could have overridden his actions if caught in time.

His 6-by-9 foot space capsule reached speeds of 5,100 miles an hour before plunging into the Atlantic 302 miles southeast, where it was plucked from the water by a helicopter.

Shepard was flown immediately to the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain, where physicians had a checking him over for any ill effects.

I don't think Doctors may need have to do to me. Don't be told one of the physicians.

The physician who monitored his condition by radio during the flight — which subjected him to stresses up to 11 times that of normal gravity — reported the first American astronaut was probably the calmest man in the whole operation.

President Kennedy telephoned his congratulations to Shepard within minutes after the astronaut's arrival on the carrier and told him of the hero's welcome awaiting him in Washington.

"This is an historic milestone in our own exploration into space," the President said.

A U.S. space agency official said Shepard's feat is only the beginning of America's exploration of space. Deputy Administrator Hugh Dryden said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is planning to send an astronaut into orbit around the earth soon. Later, he said, astronauts will travel to the moon and back.

Kennedy To Ask Space Cash Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy publicly and proudly rejoiced Friday at America's launching of a man into space. But he tempered elation with word that more money must be poured into redoubled efforts to explore space.

Minutes after Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard, Jr., returned from flashing 115 miles into the skies, Kennedy issued a statement saying "all America rejoices in this successful flight" — but it also should provide an incentive for redoubled efforts "in this vital field."

Then at a later news conference the President spoke with pride of Shepard's accomplishment and again of the challenge that lies ahead.

TO SEEK FUNDS

He said that yes, he is going to ask Congress for additional appropriations—"we are going to make a substantially larger effort in space."

After a bow to the human accomplishment and courage demonstrated in Russia's successful effort to put a man into orbit around the earth and bring him back, Kennedy added:

"We have a long way to go in the field of space. We are behind. But we are working hard and we are going to increase our efforts."

He repeated what he had said earlier, that the United States in-

U. S. Considers Complete Cuba Trade Embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy said Friday the United States is considering a complete embargo on trade with Cuba.

He told his news conference the possibility had been discussed at recent meetings of the National Security Council.

"As you know, the only kind of supplies that are now being sent to Cuba involve food and medicine, so that we have to consider carefully all of the implications of further action, and that is being done," Kennedy said.

The President also said there are no plans to train a Cuban exile army in this country.

"We have no plans to train Cuban exiles, as a Cuban force in this country, or in any other country, at this time," Kennedy said. He said the only military training open to Cubans was that available to those who join the U. S. Army.

Kennedy announced that he has proposed an extraordinary meeting of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council for July 15 to "initiate and develop planning and arrangements" for economic progress in the Americas.

The announcement on the Cardona meeting said Kennedy arranged for the rebel leader to discuss aid for Cuban exiles with Abraham Ribicoff, secretary of health, education and welfare.

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Harvey G. Fields, 79, nationally known Farmerville lawyer, and political figure, died at 1 p.m. Friday after being confined at Norris - Booth Clinic here since Easter Sunday when he was stricken with a throat paralysis.

Mr. Fields, holder of a number of local, state and federal positions during his lifetime, was the father of T. T. Fields, Union Parish representative in the state legislature.

He was a native of Marksville in Avoyelles Parish, but spent most of his adult life in Farmerville.

Public offices he held included state senator, 1912-16; district attorney, third judicial district, 1922-24; chairman, Louisiana Public Service Commission, 1928-36; federal district attorney, western district, 1936-40; chairman, state central committee under the administration of Gov. Henry L. Fuqua, 1924-26; appointed to Farmerville town council by Gov. Luther Hall; headed the Louisiana delegation for the national Democratic convention in Houston, Tex., 1928.

He practiced law as a partner of the late Huey P. Long and Judge Robert J. O'Neal, 1923-29, in Farmerville and Shreveport. His law practice here continued for 54 years.

In 1953, he was awarded a gold plaque by Tulane University, from which he graduated in 1903, after receiving a bachelor degree from Louisiana Tech and attending Louisiana State University.

122 From Cuba Land In Miami

MIAMI (UPI)—The first commercial flight from Cuba since Fidel Castro proclaimed the country a "socialist" state four days ago arrived here Friday jammed to capacity with 122 passengers aboard.

U. S. immigration officials said most of them were Cubans. However, first reports indicated six Americans were aboard. One couple was identified as Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Johnson.

The plane, a Pan American World Airways Dc6, normally carries only 86 seated passengers. There was a large number of children aboard.

Laos Truce Negotiators Talk In Vain

HIN HEUP, Laos (AP)—Military negotiators for the Laos warring factions held the first major meeting to work out details of a cease-fire but were unable to agree even on a site for future talks.

Political leaders in Vientiane at the same time proposed that talks begin Saturday in the royal capital of Luang Prabang. Presumably they would be top-level negotiations on forming a coalition government.

IGNORE PROPOSALS

The government pointedly ignored rebel proposals that political questions be discussed on the front. Only a military team, led by Brig. Gen. Sing Rathanasamay was sent Friday to discuss matters relating to Wednesday's cease-fire, such as armistice lines.

The negotiators, six royal officers and six sent by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebels and ex-Premier Souvanna Phouma's self-styled neutralists, met in an abandoned house on the north bank of the Nam Lik River, which runs through Hin Heup, in no man's land 55 miles north of Vientiane, the administrative capital.

In London, the British Foreign Office announced Britain and the Soviet Union have agreed an international control commission will go to Laos in the near future to supervise the truce.

Official Insists Marcello Now In El Salvador

Martinez said that a squad of police drove Marcello and his attorney, Michael Maroon, to the city of Candelaria, El Salvador, Wednesday night.

The interior minister did not explain how Marcello was able to get into El Salvador without proper travel documents. It was the lack of such documents which led airlines here to deny him passage.

Col. Alvaro Rivas Rodriguez, El Salvador's ambassador to Guatemala told newsmen he had no knowledge of Marcello's deportation except that which he read in the newspapers.

Thursday the director of immigration of El Salvador told newsmen that Marcello would be denied entry to that country.

Marcello was deported from New Orleans as an undesirable alien by U.S. Immigration authorities. His only claim to being a Guatemalan citizen was a birth certificate which the government said was spurious.

TOWNS SMASHED

14 Die, 40 Hurt As Tornado Hits

POTEAU, Okla. (AP) — Storm clouds that blanketed eastern Oklahoma late Friday spat out a vicious tornado that tore through two tiny communities near here, killing at least 14.

Ten were reported dead at Howe and four at Richeart. The death toll could go higher as rescue workers dug into the debris.

REPORT CRASH

There was a report a light plane flying frantically to avoid the massive storm cloud — crashed after a wing tore off.

The highway patrol said a woman who lived in the area reported she saw the plane go down west of Heavener near Summerfield.

It was a grim anniversary for this rolling, wooded area some 200 miles southeast of Oklahoma City. Just one year ago 12 were killed when a twister destroyed most of the downtown area of Wilburton.

Tornadoes had plagued Oklahoma for two days, but until Friday night there had just been one fatality from the scores of funnels sighted.

Two of the dead were babies. One father died with his 2-month old son and a mother with her 14-month-old boy.

Tiny farms are scattered throughout the twister-pounded area. Reports of twisters came from other areas of eastern Oklahoma.

The little hamlet of Richeart was hit first. Then the tornado plowed through Howe.

Both towns are located in the hill country of southeastern Oklahoma near Lake Wister.

Kenneth Wells of the fire department said four persons had been killed in Howe, another 40 hospitalized with injuries. Wells said four others were killed in Richeart, a community of 25 persons.

Gas Fumes Kill 4 In Furnace

GADSDEN, Ala. (AP) — Four men were killed Friday after being overcome by gas fumes while working at relining a blast furnace at Republic Steel Corp.

The blast furnace had been shut down on April 22 for the relining work.

Outside contractors were employed to do the brick and related work on the furnace — one of Republic's two blast furnaces.

The four men were working inside and near the top of the 80-foot-tall furnace.

Emmett Jones, Republic's blast furnace superintendent, was overcome by the fumes while attempting to rescue one of the four men. He was hospitalized.

Kennedy Is Lashed By Nixon

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, in his first speech on national issues since the election, lashed out strongly Friday at the way President Kennedy handled the Cuban situation.

"Whenever American prestige is to be committed on a major scale," the former vice president told the Executives Club, "we must be willing to commit enough power to obtain our objective even if all our intelligence estimates prove wrong."

SPEAKS BLUNTLY

Putting it bluntly, we should not start things unless we are prepared to finish them." And, "We must never talk bigger than we are prepared to act."

This, Nixon insisted, is the lesson to be learned from the Cuban disaster.

"We must not allow a failure to paralyze our will to undertake decisive action in the future," he said.

"The worst thing that could flow from our failure in Cuba is not the temporary drop in prestige which seems to obsess too many observers but that the failure may discourage American policymakers from taking decisive steps in the future because there is a risk of failure."

In a question and answer period after the speech, Nixon hinted Kennedy may think this way, too.

Nixon was asked if Soviet Premier Khrushchev and Kennedy should hold a summit meeting. He said it might have one value since the Soviet leader may have been misled by Cuba and Laos.

"If they sat across the table from each other," Nixon said

Some Showers Expected Today

The only change in today's weather forecast is that showers are more likely than they have been for the past few days. And still they are not certain.

The outlook calls for partly cloudy skies and widely scattered thundershowers.

Temperatures will be about the same as yesterday with the high ranging between 76 and 86 degrees.

Friday's top reading was 86 and the lowest the mercury dropped to was 68.

CIVIL RIGHTS HEARING

Five Registrars Give Testimony

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U. S. Civil Rights Commission, investigating charges that Negroes were denied voting rights, heard testimony from five north Louisiana parish vote registrars Friday, then adjourned until Saturday.

Registrars heard were Miss Mary Ethel Fox of Plaquemines, Mrs. Mary K. Bruce of Bossier, Mrs. Wallace J. P. Clement of Webster, Quitman Crouch of St. Helena and Mrs. Estelle Wilder of Jackson.

CITES REQUIREMENTS

Miss Fox explained that one requirement for qualifying in Plaquemines is that the applicant must be able to interpret to her satisfaction two out of three sections of the state constitution.

Asked how she determines if the test is satisfactory, she said she has a prepared set of answers she goes by and she always goes by this list.

When filling out the commonly used LRA application card, said Miss Fox, the prospective voter must answer the questions correctly and fill out all necessary blanks.

Staff attorneys asked if she would allow any leeway on the section calling for a person's age in years, months and days.

She said she would allow a per-

Food Poisoning Hits About 50 N. O. Students

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — About 50 students at St. Rita's Catholic school—apparently victims of food poisoning—were treated Friday at Ochsner Foundation Hospital.

None was seriously ill.

A hospital spokesman said the children began arriving from the nearby school about 12:30 p.m. and three more students arrived after 2 p.m.

"We think the worst is over," the spokesman said.

He quoted an attending physician as saying that food poisoning was the most likely cause of the illnesses. Earlier, there was a report leaking freon gas from school air conditioning had caused children to "go to sleep."

Officials closed down the school.

lends to share with the world the scientific information obtained in Friday's space flight and will continue to be motivated by the view that "the probe into space should be peaceful."

To his knowledge, Kennedy said, Russia has not offered to share the facts at developed from a manned space shot.

It was the American shot, covered in minute detail by reporters and cameramen that led off the questioning at Kennedy's news conference. And the questions kept coming back to that.

But the conference also produced word from the chief executive that the matter of sending U. S. troops to help South Viet Nam ward off Communist thrusts is "still under consideration." That, he said, is one of the things Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will take up with the South Vietnamese government on a trip to Southeast Asia next week.

Kennedy said the administration also is considering carefully all the implications of a complete ban on trade with Cuba. He noted that only foods and medicine now are exempt.

Kennedy also told a questioner the United States is not now training and is not now planning to train any force of Cuban exiles.

In the domestic area, the President spoke up for the financing of national political campaigns by the national government. He said this would avoid difficulties and embarrassments such as Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall has gone through in connection with a letter asking people to buy $100 tickets to a Democratic fund raising dinner.

In discussing Friday morning's sortie into space, Kennedy acknowledged that the country would have been humiliated by a failure.

Kennedy touched on these other subjects:

SOUTHEAST ASIA — The President did not rule out the use of U. S. troops to prevent Communist domination of South Viet Nam, which has been under severe pressures from Red-supported guerrilla attacks from outside.

"The problem of troops and the matter of what we are going to do to assist Viet Nam obtain its independence is a matter still under consideration," Kennedy said.

Kennedy said that the kind of assistance this country may extend to South Viet Nam is one of the matters with which Johnson will deal on his tour.

CUBA — The President said this country has no plans at this time to train Cuban exiles here or in any other country as a force which might again undertake to overthrow Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Kennedy said the National Security Council has considered the possibility of an embargo on trade with Cuba but that only food and medicine are now being shipped to that Communist-dominated land and "We have to consider carefully all of the implications of further action."

Kennedy, asked about U.S. policy in view of Castro's hostile declarations, said the Monroe Doctrine and treaties with other nations continue to govern foreign policy in this hemisphere.

VIENNA — The President announced that Arthur H. Dean is returning to Geneva to resume stalemated negotiations with Great Britain and the Soviet Union on an agreement to ban nuclear weapons tests. Dean has been in Washington for consultations this week.

Kennedy indicated, however, that he won't be to see some progress in the talks before long. He said he had asked Dean to report "within a reasonable time on the prospects for a constructive outcome."

UDALL — Kennedy said he would strongly support a method whereby the federal government would shoulder the major cost of presidential campaigns for both parties.

He said this when a reporter asked if he had any advice for Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall as the result of a letter sent out by a friend of Udall's to oil men soliciting their purchase of tickets to a $100-a-plate Democratic dinner.

J. K. Evans, Washington representative of an oil company, said in the letter that he was trying to help Udall.

Udall said he had had some casual conversation with Evans about the dinner but hadn't intended for Evans to take the action he did.

Kennedy said he thought Udall "was embarrassed by this incident" and that the whole question of raising funds for campaigns is a difficult one which leads to embarrassments.

As long as there is no broader participation in campaign financing among the people, Kennedy said, "I think it ought to be done through the national government."

INTERNATIONAL — Kennedy said that in general "we have grounds for encouragement" in improvement of the international situation.

He said he was hopeful that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will be strengthened by its forthcoming meeting in Oslo, Norway, that there is a common recognition of the need for closer cooperation, that he looks for U. S. ties with Japan to become stronger, and that he is encouraged by the effort India is making on its third five-year plan of economic development.

In this part of the world, Kennedy said there is greater awareness of the need for a long-term approach to problems of poverty. "There is cause for alarm in the determined effort which Communists are making to seize control of the liberal revolutionary movements which are endemic to the Western Hemisphere."

He said he is "not a pessimist about the future."

EISENHOWER — Kennedy said that it will be up to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower himself to decide finally whether to go through with a trip to Japan later this year. Eisenhower announced this week that on the advice of the State Department he had called off the trip.

Kennedy said he had discussed this with the State Department and as a result Eisenhower will be given all available information in order to reach a decision.

He said "President Eisenhower could very usefully travel abroad as an individual and also, of course, as a respected citizen of this country."

WAGE — Kennedy said he regretted that laundry workers had been omitted from coverage of the minimum wage bill which he signed this morning. A newsman had reminded the President that during the campaign last year he had repeatedly protested that laundry workers received sub-standard wages.

Kennedy said that that was true and that he hoped further expansions would be made at the minimum wage law to help laundry workers, and also hotel and restaurant employees.

Mrs. Fox was asked to supply the answers concerning herself on a sample LR1 application card. On the age section she said she was born Sept. 29, 1923, and listed her age as 37 years, 8 months and 2 days.

Here, commission Chairman John Hannah pointed out that had she been an applicant, she would have disqualified herself "if my arithmetic is correct." He said the correct answer should be 37 years, 7 months and 6 or 7 days.

At the outset of the hearing, Leander Perez Sr., assistant district attorney of Plaquemines and St. Bernard parishes who served as counsel for Miss Fox, attempted to object to a question put to her.

But commission vice chairman Robert G. Storey told Perez he could not submit objections except in unusual circumstances due to the nature of the commission in that it is a fact-finding agency and not a prosecuting body.

The hearings are continuation of those that started last fall and suspended Sept. 23.

A commission staff member read a January, 1959 letter by Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion to Miss Fox that the state constitution does not require registration applicants to pass a constitutional interpretation test, but does allow parish police juries to demand such.

Gremillion was unable to attend the hearings due to conference in Washington on tidelands issues, but a statement by him was read to the commission by one of his assistants.

Mrs. Bryce said she didn't require a constitutional interpretation for qualifying.

She added that she generally didn't keep the rejected applications on file because she was not required to do so.

Asked if she ran the registration office as she wanted, she answered yes, emphasizing that she tried to be fair to everyone, whites and Negroes alike.

Asked why only 5.3 per cent of the non-whites in the parish were registered compared to 52.6 per cent of the whites, Mrs. Bryce replied that a lot of Negroes don't want to apply.

Mrs. Clement, Webster Parish registrar since 1940, said she gave the constitutional interpretation test first.

If passed satisfactorily, she said, the applicant received the LR-1 form to fill out.

She admitted that everyone was not required to take the constitutional test, especially if she knew the person.

At that point, a commission staffer asked Mrs. Clement if she knew more whites than Negroes in the parish, and she replied yes.

She added that she told the applicant immediately whether he qualified to register.

Crouch, St. Helena Parish registrar since June, 1959, said he asked all applicants to interpret a part of the constitution, and that he told the person immediately if all requirements were met.

Oscar Hall, a Greensburg Negro, told the commission he attempted to re-register twice this year but failed to because he couldn't interpret the constitution satisfactorily for Crouch.

He gave the commission his interpretation to the sections he had been asked to explain by Crouch.

Crouch told the commission that Hall hadn't done nearly as well when he applied April 27 and again May 3, adding that Hall must have done some studying and would surely be able to pass the requirement if he could do as well when applying as he had done before the commission.

Mrs. Wilder, Jackson Parish registrar the past 10 years, was the final witness of the day.

She said she always asked for a constitutional interpretation and an explanation of the Republican form of government.

Mrs. Wilder said under state law, an applicant must be able to spell everything correctly on his form.

Hannah noted that Mrs. Wilder had rejected one Negro applicant because he had misspelled two words on his form shortly after he was discharged from the service. Hannah asked Mrs. Wilder if she didn't feel ill at ease turning down a man who had served four years in the Navy just because he couldn't spell two words.

She replied she felt Louisiana laws could not be applied to some citizens but not to others.

Conducting the hearings were Hannah, president of Mississippi State University; Storey, President of the Southwestern Legal Center and former Dean of Southern Methodist University law school in Dallas; and Dr. Robert S. Rankin, head of the political science department at Duke University.

booster for the flight blasted away from its pad here at 9:34 a.m. Eastern Standard Time. Nineteen minutes later Shepard climbed out of the capsule's escape hatch and was picked up by helicopter.

"It's a beautiful day," he told the copter crewmen.

"Boy, what a ride!"

Exciting as it was, the flight was still secondary to the feat of the Soviet Union's Yuri A. Gagarin, who April 12 was hurled into a 188-mile-high orbit around the globe. He returned to earth safely 108 minutes after being launched.

A test of the only American rocket believed capable of duplicating the Soviet success ended disastrously last week when an Atlas veered off course and had to be destroyed 40 seconds after launch.

Shepard remained calm all through the four hours he was in his contour couch in the capsule atop the rocket before liftoff.

He climbed a service tower and entered his space cabin at 5:18 a.m. The preliminary countdown was then virtually on schedule.

A long series of delays due to minor technical problems and bad weather followed.

Then the 83-foot-tall projectile shot into the sky, trailing a long streak of vapor.

Two F106 jet planes roared across the Cape. Piloting them were Walter Schirra and Scott Carpenter, members of the seven-man Mercury astronaut team, who watched the launching from the air and sped south to observe the recovery.

The rocket shot into a large cloud overhanging the Cape, then emerged on course.

During the 140 seconds of extreme acceleration, Shepard withstood a pressure of 6 G's without comment.

A sudden puff of smoke high in the sky told ground watchers that the booster's big engine had run out of fuel—on schedule—and the rocket case dropped away. So did the escape tower which had protected him on launch.

"What a beautiful view," he radioed.

Then he reported that he could see the whole Eastern coast of the United States.

Taking manual control of jets which control the capsule, Shepard turned his craft around a full 130 degrees.

This placed the capsule's broad base, shielded against the 3,000-degree heat that air friction would build up when he re-entered the atmosphere on his way down, in position.

Then the capsule went through a test of the braking rockets that will be needed in later orbital flights. The rockets are designed to slow the space craft down so it can drop back into the atmosphere.

Shepard fired the braking rockets on schedule and reported: "Everything very smooth."

As he approached re-entry into the atmosphere, Shepard radioed: "Automatic controls performing properly." That indicated he had shut off his manual controls.

A few seconds later:

"Peak G 11. Ok."

Moments later Shepard reported he was at 30,000 feet on the way down.

"First chute has deployed," he said. "Another. All systems A-OK."

By "A-OK," Shepard meant that everything was "double OK" — or perfect.

Seconds later the historic flight was over.

The capsule splashed into the ocean and Shepard climbed out to be picked up by helicopter.

Both he and the capsule were flown to the recovery force flagship, the carrier Lake Champlain.

Once on the deck of the carrier, Shepard nonchalantly re-entered the capsule to retrieve his helmet, brushed off when he climbed out.

After a brief examination and a shower on the carrier, Shepard was flown to a hospital on Grand Bahama Island for two days of physical and psychological examinations before going to Washington.

Iran Premier, Cabinet Resign In New Crisis

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Premier Sharif Emami and his cabinet resigned Friday under pressure of anti-government demonstrations in support of higher pay for teachers.

Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi, the ruler of Iran, immediately named Dr. Ali Amini to head a new government and try to lead the country out of its second major political crisis in less than a year.

Kennedy Is Lashed By Nixon

Curiously, the tone of the speech appeared to be almost the exact reverse of the presidential campaign in which Nixon was so narrowly beaten by his Democratic foe, John F. Kennedy.

Then it was Kennedy who was calling for bolder, more imaginative leadership.

Friday, it was Nixon who was urging the President to take a more decisive stand.

"In the propaganda area," he said, "we must recognize that what we say can have a great effect on the outcome of our struggle with world communism. Words do count—and the new administration has set an exceedingly high standard for its words.

"But in the end, when the balance sheet of history is added up, our deeds must match our words —when our words are strong and our actions are timid, we end up appearing aggressive and weak at the same time."

Nixon said if the small nations get the idea the United States doesn't think they're important enough to fight for, "they will go down the Communist line like a row of dominoes."

"Moral support is important and necessary," he said, "but it is a poor shield against Communist tanks and planes."

This was the first of a series of speeches Nixon will make in the next six days in which he will review almost every facet of the first 100 days of the Kennedy administration. This talk dealt almost exclusively with foreign affairs, with only a few sidesteps at domestic programs.

Nixon admitted the role of a defeated candidate is difficult to play.

He said he would debate and discuss foreign issues until decisions are made, but that once Kennedy takes action he can count on bipartisan support.

"I will support him to the hilt," Nixon said, "in backing positive action he may decide is necessary to resist further Communist aggression."

EICHMANN TRIAL

Witnesses Tell Of Death Squads

JERUSALEM (AP)—A report from a Nazi comrade of Adolf Eichmann described the slaughter of 100,000 Jews in the Balticicountries as if "speaking of the canning of sardines or herring," prosecutor Gideon Hausner said Friday.

The Israeli attorney general introduced a report by Franz Walter Stahlbecker, described as an "old friend" of Eichmann. It described activities of the Nazi death squads who shot a million Jews in Europe before the Nazis switched to mass executions in gas chambers.

Then the court trying Eichmann for crimes against the Jews and crimes against humanity heard of the terrorist tactics of the squads from the lips of witnesses who survived.

Eleazar Kashat said that of 100,000 Jews in Latvia — where Stahlbecker was in charge—only 800 survived. This brought a gasp in the courtroom.

Kashat testified one woman who had survived told him "those who were lucky got a bullet and those who were not lucky fell into the pit and most of them suffocated."

Avraham Aviel, 34, survivor of a mass execution near his native village in Radom, Poland, told the court he was forced from his home with his mother and brother and marched to a market square. There they were ordered to kneel and listen to a Nazi harangue for one hour. Then they were led down a road toward a cemetery.

"When we got there, approximately 100 yards from this cemetery, we were told to get off the road," he said. "Again we had to kneel, head down. We were not permitted to look to the side. But we could hear shots.

"I was small then and shorter. I could raise my head without being seen and I saw in front of us a long trench, maybe 30 yards long. They began leading us to that trench, row after row of people."

Aviel said he, his mother and his brother could hear people being ordered to undress on the brink of the trench.

"Then we heard machinegun bursts. People would fall in the trench—children, women, family after family, they fell."

Aviel kissed his mother and fled to a group of grave diggers near-by where he had recognized an older brother among them, he said.

As the testimony unfolded, Eichmann, the former Gestapo officer, sat in his bullet proof glass cage taking notes.

Defense counsel Robert Servatius named six more ex-Nazis to testify for Eichmann. Hausner said four would be arrested as war criminals if they set foot in Israel and he would study the cases of the other two.

This raised to 10 the number of witnesses proposed by Servatius. Those refusing to come to Israel will be questioned in Germany.

14 Die, 40 Hurt As Tornado Hits 2 Small Towns

said he sighted the twister as he drove near Richeart.

"We could see it ripping up trees. It hit Richeart first," said Morris, "and then practically destroyed Howe. Buildings were torn down as far as I could see."

Hall Copeland of Poteau, who visited Howe shortly after the tornado, said, "It looked like the twister went right through the middle of town."

Copeland said three churches were demolished, about 3 homes were destroyed and all of the business buildings were damaged or destroyed.

"There were several people walking around in the debris with head injuries," said Copeland. "One woman was crying and hysterical."

The injured were hospitalized here.

A Red Oak telephone operator said she received an emergency telephone call from S.O. Dehart, a service station operator at Leflore who went to Richeart.

"I can't find anybody in Richeart," the operator quoted Dehart as saying. "All the homes I went to were destroyed. Everybody seems to have disappeared."

A twister also slammed into the edge of Hugo about 10 miles southwest of here. The highway patrol reported several buildings at the northeast edge of the town were destroyed, but apparently there were no casualties.

UNDER SECURITY WRAPS

Fugitive Cubans Land In Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — U. S. officials kept 12 half-starved Cubans, believed to be survivors of the ill-fated Cuban invasion, under security wraps Friday.

Delirious and wild-eyed, the Cubans ended a 15-day voyage across the Gulf of Mexico in a 25-foot open sail boat Thursday.

They were picked up Wednesday night by the American tanker SS Atlantic Seaman about 170 miles south of the Mississippi River. Three of their companions were dead.

Officially classified as "refugees from Cuba," the 12 survivors were taken to the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital when they arrived in New Orleans after a trip up the Mississippi River in a Coast Guard boat.

Board Approves $92,663 State Funds Requests

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Board of Liquidation of State Debt Friday approved $92,663 in emergency state spending requests including $5,000 for a monument to military servicewomen.

Delegates representing the military Women's Memorial Monument Fund had asked the $5,000. The money will be turned over to the State Parks and Recreation Commission.

Requests approved include:

State Department of Institutions, $25,000 to purchase a motor grader for the state penitentiary.

State Department of Education, $50,000 to pay for additional step pay boosts, and office supplies.

Lake Bruin Wayside Park, $963 for safety signs.

Other requests were taken under advisement. These include a $25,000 request from Commissioner L. D. Young of the Wildlife and Fisheries Department to pay expenses and attorneys fees in the Ward - McIlhenny vs. Louisiana lawsuit, and $25,000 each for constructing an artificial fishing reef near Grand Isle and off the Cameron Parish shore.

Magazine Cites Agency For Ads In Local Papers

On the following week, in similar sized space Ryan reproduced a telegram from the factory congratulating the dealership on a 24.7 per cent increase in sales over corresponding period last year.

The magazine recognized the advertisement and published a co ment as to the effectiveness of spread.

Jerry Ryan at Ryan Chevro had this to say about the rec nition. "I was indeed pleased our newspaper advertising selected for mention in the for and Publisher. Our policy factual, informative and attract advertising of our product and firm has contributed greatly our becoming Northeast Lo ana's largest automobile dea

Cuba First To Join Red Camp Freely

NEW YORK (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro's decision making Cuba the first voluntary member of the Soviet bloc is a major propaganda victory for communism, Soviet affairs experts said Friday.

In nearly 44 years of Soviet history, Cuba is the first nation to join the Communist camp freely, without the pressure of the Red army or an avowedly Communist revolution.

The Russians have always made it clear that new members would be welcome, but volunteers never came forward, and the enlargement of the Communist camp since World War II has been accomplished by war and Moscow-supported revolution.

From the standpoint of Communist propaganda, Cuba thus presents a far better case to uncommitted nations than the Soviet satellites in which governments were imposed and maintained by armed force.

One of the experts, Prof. Zbigniew K. Brzezinski of Columbia University's Russian Institute, blamed U.S. policies for forcing Castro to turn to Moscow.

Brzezinski, author of "The Soviet Bloc" and other books on Soviet Affairs, said the United States erred in coupling Castro with the Communists early in the course of his regime.

"The reason he proclaimed a socialist revolution is that in a sense he had no alternative," he said.

Brzezinski said the West used different policies with other nationalist leaders such as United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Iraqi Premier Abdul Karam Kassem and kept them out of the Communist orbit.

"We never pushed Nasser and Kassem to the wall and forced them to decide either for us or the Soviets," he said. "This prevented a situation from arising in which they would have to make this ultimate choice."

Another source said Castro's swift crushing of the invasion showed that Russia has exported more than weapons and Communist theory to Cuba.

"The Castro regime has quickly adopted all the methods of terror that Stalin spent years in developing, from a system of secret policemen and informers to captive courts and arbitrary justice," he said. "The system survived its first efficiency test by holding the lid on any popular uprising that might have accompanied the invasion."

Brzezinski said the idea of invading Cuba was not a mistake, but he criticized the way it was carried out.

"We should have known you don't overthrow a totalitarian regime with a handful of men," he said. "And you don't fight an extremely leftist regime with forces of the right, because this compels the moderates into Castro's camp."

Opinions vary on the amount of direct control the Soviet Union will be able to exercise in Cuba because of Castro's unique voluntary membership in the Communist camp. But satellite leaders in other countries have found that Soviet controls penetrate every level of their life

Driver Finds Gas Attendant Is Not Joking

G. C. McKinney and H. R. Bru of Los Altos, Calif., will testify to this. They were riding through Edmonton in one of the 93 cars in the 4,100-mile Trans-Canada Auto Rally when they needed gas.

"Fill 'er up," said McKinney.

The station attendant said: "How, diesel?"

McKinney thought it was a gag and replied "Sure."

A mile later the car came to a shuddering stop. The attendant really had filled the tank of the gas-burning MG Magnette with diesel fuel.

Happily for the Californians, the engine was cleaned out in short order and they sped on toward Edmonton.

'New Deal' Farming

The new Secretary of Agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, has begun a move to turn back the "New deal" in his field through use of a stronger public relations program.

He will try to make a test case, parish and community Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation personnel to "stand up" more than do and talk for Secretary Freeman. The program will be pushed from Washington right down to the grass roots.

These committees are to pass on eligibility for subsidies and participation in programs of various kinds. Membership is elective.

Freeman has objected several times to the county committees which were established by the farm program of the previous administration. Democratic office holders have tried to keep control of the committees and state officials have urged that they be kept out of politics.

Freeman announced recently he was "totally opposed to arbitrary limitations on the service of committeemen so that their talents may be fully utilized in getting understanding of our programs by farmers and the general public."

The aim of the new Agriculture secretary is obvious. He wants to convert the committees from political agencies into channels to "educate the public" about federalized agriculture. He should recall the political public hot interest in this sort of thing some 20 years ago.

School Interference

Refusal of the Lincoln parents' association of New Rochelle, N. Y., school board to accept a federal order interfering with the local operation of New Rochelle schools. While accepting under protest the school board also reserved the right to appeal "the final judgment of the court."

Recently the school board adopted a court plan for desegregating the community's public school system.

Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman previously had ruled and ordered desegregation but enforced it in such a way as to interfere with school zoning, a long-established local practice throughout the entire United States. Not satisfied with integration under the regular system of school division, the judge wants to reorganize the system.

The plan provides that any pupil attending the predominantly Negro Lincoln elementary school in New Rochelle, Heretofore, children, whether white or black, have been allowed to register only in the district in which they live unless given special permission to transfer.

Several conditions to registering [illegible] the pupils' districts were attacked but they did not change the fact that the court is interfering with the long-established system of school placement when the question of integration was not involved.

Condition included: seats must be available; transfers must not make classes in other schools too large; permission to transfer must be renewed each year, and parents must agree in writing to pay any necessary transportation of former Lincoln school pupils to new schools.

The plan also provides that each pupil who transfers must have a recommendation from a Lincoln school teacher and must be able to perform academically at the level to which he is assigned.

Kaufman had ruled in New York City that the board of education violated the constitutional rights of Negro children by not allowing them to register at schools of their choice, although this was contrary to practice in most school systems throughout the United States.

In its zeal for integration, the federal court interferes more and more in the local operation of schools, even on other matters.

German 'Birth Explosion'

One proposal by German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will be regarded with some skepticism in the western world and possibly with open suspicion by France. Adenauer, who has adhered generally to democratic processes, has promised, if re-elected to "create the climate for a much-needed birth explosion".

The chancellor concedes that his thinking about babies parallels those of the late dictator, Adolf Hitler, but maintains that his motives are "demographic," not political. He hopes to boost the German birth rate to 20 per thousand, the maximum rate achieved by Hitler with all his scientific breeding programs.

"We are a dying people," Adenauer warned, alluding to figures placing the German birthrate at 17.3 per thousand population, compared to the 25 per thousand rate boasted by both the United States and Russia.

Among the incentives Adenauer would offer families that contribute to the baby boom would be bonuses for mothers and increased government help for large families.

If the chancellor's campaign is successful, the "kinderreiche familie" (the child-rich family) is expected to become Germany's new status symbol.

One of the great drawbacks about a "birth explosion" in Germany is that that country is already heavily over-populated. It is only natural that one would want to see his own race multiply and prosper but when a country has more people than it can support one of two things is almost certain to result. Either the people are almost constantly in a state of famine or an urge for conquest becomes inevitable. The people want more land and more opportunity and in a world that is mostly occupied, the only way they can get those things is to take them away from others.

World Wars I and II were caused chiefly by Germany's need for more space. A "birth explosion" would bring that need back in full force.

ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Laotian Crisis Desperate

Policymakers Is Strange Role Mysticism Plays

One of the most baffling imponderables that U. S. policy makers are confronted with in the desperate Laotian crisis is the almost unbelievable role that oriental mysticism is playing in the fighting there.

Its magic - like influence is shown by the graphic example of how the presence in Luang Prabang of the unburied body of the late king of Laos, Sisavang Vong, kept the Communist Pathet Lao forces from attacking the royal capital for the past 13 weeks.

Until the cremation ceremony last week, Prince Souphanouvong, the rebel leader, barred an all out ground and artillery offensive against Luang Prabang for fear it would inflame a majority of Laotians against his Marxist indoctrinated forces.

The Laotians, including many of Prince Souphanouvong's own followers, believe that if the sandalwood urn containing the late king's body was damaged or destroyed before it was cremated millions of spirits would spring forth to retaliate against those responsible.

In any attack on the city, there always was a real danger that the king's body would be destroyed in the fighting since it was kept in a gold - spired temple near the headquarters of the commander of all government troops in northern Laos — the major military objective of the rebels in that area.

So strong a deterrent was this religious belief that for weeks U. S. military advisers to the Laotians were able to take troops from the capital and use them to shore up weak positions of the government on other fighting fronts.

The cremation of the king's body, which U. S. officials unsuccessfully tried to postpone until after a cease - fire, has changed all this. It has made Luang Prabang an immediate target of a new rebel offensive.

Capture of this "northern" capital of Laos will give the Pathet Lao a tremendous psychological as well as military victory. In effect, it will give them an almost dictatorial voice over the formation of a coalition government that both sides have proposed as a solution for that southeast Asian kingdom.

LAOTIAN ARMY — The failure of the Laotian army to give a good account of itself is due mainly to weaknesses stemming from army personnel policy.

By choosing almost all the officers for its army from the aristocratic Lao tribes, the Laotian government has antagonized the lesser tribes which U. S. and French military advisers consider the best fighters.

The men of those tribes often leave the army with their weapons, return to their villages, and simply defy the government to do anything about it.

U. S. military advisers report that the discipline is appalling with officers careful not to hurt enlisted men's feelings. Many Laotian soldiers are in the army for its comparatively high pay and according to a confidential defense department report "Nearly half of the Laotian soldiers are very much averse to fighting." In contrast, there is a long waiting list of applicants for non-fighting jobs in the army.

When the U. S. took over the army's training from the French in 1959, U. S. military officers found the 26,000 - man force poorly trained and its dependence on motorized transport made it ill - adapted for guerrilla warfare.

U. S. officers immediately tried to correct this by concentrating their training on two paratroop battalions for airdrop and guerrilla operations. The paratroop battalion under Captain Kong Le defected with their leader in 1960 after a year of U. S. training and is now fighting with the Pathet Lao against the Boun Oum government. The other battalion is now the mainstay of the Laotian Army.

OTHER FACTORS — There are a number of social, ethnic and geographic situations in Laos that are operating against the pro - Western Boun Oum government and for the pro-Soviet Pathet Lao forces.

General C. P. Cabell, the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, highlighted these problems in a briefing given concressing leaders, reporting:

"Beyond the geographic aspects of the problem in Laos, there are the social, ethnic and political situations which are operating favorably for the Pathet Lao and their guerrilla - type warfare.

"The people of Lao stock make up only about half of the population of the country. These are primarily concentrated in Vientiane and Luang Prabang. The population in other areas are made up largely of hill tribes and ethnic groups who have not yet learned to identify themselves with the central government.

"The common people of Laos, especially those in the villages, are unorganized, superstitious and highly susceptible to rumor, propaganda, and intimidation. The Patret Lao are systematically killing off loyal Laotian citizens whom they suspect of giving information to the government forces."

Cabell pointed out to the legislators that "geographically, Laos presents an ideal theater of operation from the Communists standpoint. It has 800 miles of northern and eastern border with Communist territory. The supply routes into Laos from Hanoi in North Vietnam and from Dien Bien Phu are considerably better than from the (southern) Laotian capital, Vientiane."

LATE NEWS FLASHES — Prince Souvanna Phouma, the deposed former prime minister of Laos, has returned from Moscow with a Kremlin drafted buleprint for a coalition government. If named premier, the pro-Communist prince will ask Russia and Red China to supply advisers to establish an internal police force, the U. S. to supply agriculture advisers, and India and Thailand to send technicians for public works projects . . British Guiana may be the next Latin American nation to become a Communist satellite. The CIA warns that Jagan, the pro-Communist party leader there is popular enough again to win election if the British permit one to be held this year. The British earlier blocked Jagan from taking over by sending in troops, but the country is scheduled to gain internal autonomy this year.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Ataractic Drugs

New Medicine Has Quieting Effect Without Sleepiness

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is meant by ataractic drugs? — Mr. T., Ky.

Answer: Ataraxia means peace of mind. Until recently we used to calm some individuals by prescribing such drugs as phenobarbital or bromides. In fact, these are still useful drugs in anxious and nervous people. Their great drawback is that they may produce drowsiness which interferes with daily activities.

The newer ataractic drugs produce a quieting effect without making the patient sleepy and dopey. As I have often warned, better not take them on your own. Unless used under careful supervision, you may suffer disagreeable side effects.

For example, consider reserpine, which comes from the rauwolfia root long known in India. Not only is it effective in the management of high blood pressure; it also has a marked sedative effect. But if taken too long or in too large doses, it can cause severe depression, nose - stuffiness and low blood pressure. In similar and various ways such ataractics as chlorpromazine and meprobamate are not only helpful, but potentially harmful.

People who work with infections will tell you that the antibiotics are wonder drugs. And those who work with the mentally ill will tell you how thankful they are for the new tranquilizers. Those who treat mental patients in institutions will attest to the fact that such drugs have controlled disturbed behavior like magic in many instances. These tranquilizers have also cut down on the need for electro-shock and insulin-shock treatments.

And consider how tranquilizers — or ataractics — have enabled thousands of physicians to more adequately control their patients who suffer from the neuroses and ordinary anxieties.

TIPS ON ACCIDENT PREVENTION IN YOUNGSTERS

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a young mother, and have developed a fear that my baby will get into a horrible accident. Can you give me any suggestions that will give me peace of mind? — Mrs. D., N. J.

Answer: For fairly full details and information, write for the leaflet on accident prevention in children which is distributed by The American Academy of Pediatrics, P. O. Box 116, Evanston, Ill.

Also send for my own leaflet, "How to Overcome Your Child's Greatest Menace: Accidents." Write me c-o this paper, enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Meanwhile here are some tips that will help you until you get the fuller information. I don't know your child's age, so let's start with babies between the age of one and three months. Be sure that water is not too hot during the bath and that the faucet is out of reach. Never leave your baby alone for more than seconds. Keep pins away. Keep small objects away from his mouth. Guard the baby from rolling over and falling from a height.

If your baby is in the second six months you have to be on your toes even more. Keep poisons and medicines out of reach. Store pins, needles, buttons and small sharp playthings in place unquestionably out of harm's way. Once you let your guard down an accident may strike from any source. If you are having coffee, the youngster may pull at a overhanging table cloth, spill the drink and scald himself.

After the first year the child becomes a real explorer. It is then that mothers must be especially on guard against accidents. But more about all that in the leaflets.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Fight To Win

Without This Idea Who Needs To Start Battle

There is no use going into a fight unless the intention is to win. To lose is to strengthen the enemy. The only reason why Soviet Russia has defeated the United States in Korea, Cuba, Laos, as we shall lose in other parts of the world, is that the Russians are intent and aggressive whereas the United States prefers to retreat, to abnegate, to avoid direct action, to talk, talk, talk until the vapor of words fills the air.

All this talk of doing nothing about Cuba is childish because if the United States does not do something about Cuba, the Russians, using Cuba as a fortress, will do something about the United States. The logic which produced our defeat in Korea is producing our defeat in Cuba. The same men who brought about our defeat in Korea are bringing on our defeat in Cuba.

The argument runs that if we protect the United States in Cuba, Soviet Russia will seize Berlin. In fact, Khrushchev said so. The answer to that can only be, "seize and be damned." Those who are afraid are already dead. When a nation shudders at the thought of war, it is already in the process of being conquered.

This is the basis of Soviet strategy against the United States. It is to defeat us step by step without war and to isolate us. In Laos, the British confused us by the proposition that they would act as brokers to effectuate a truce. Meanwhile, the Red Chinese directed Laotian steadily moved forward. The game is nearly over but the truce is still in the making. Perhaps we shall get around a truce when the Red Chinese will move into Cambodia and Thailand. Shall we retreat from there, too?

If we have neither the courage no rthe technique to defend our word, why don't we quit altogether? The Russians will isolate us in a year or two unless we choose a place to fight them and stop this process. It is our isolation that is their target. The Russians and Red Chinese are building Empire and are not wasting time with petty conversations either at the United Nations or any other conference. While they make speeches, they also march forward.

Their argument is:

"You want to talk, so talk. We have plenty of delegates to send to meetings. Let them talk. It counts for nothing but you Westerners are so bogged down in a swamp of words that you talk because it gives you pleasure, like a debating society in college. You talk to each other and you talk to us. But we are very busy men.

"With us, it is different. We are attending to business. Our business. Your business. It does not matter. We have men for talking and men for acting. If we have a man who jumps on a horse and rides furiously until he comes to a ditch; then he turns around and goes back slowly — if we have such a man, like some of my colleagues were, we send them far away. We do not need those who dare not take the next inevitable step. We get rid of them.

"The West objects that Khrushchev said, 'We will bury you.' So, he talked too much! So what! You are burying yourself by being afraid. And the more afraid you are, the more we will say, Boo!"

And it is all a correct position. Our President has chosen as his advisers those who advised President Roosevelt and President Truman. The results of their period of political activity have thus far been disastrous. During his campaign, President Kennedy said that we had reached a low prestige. He would raise our prestige, but many of those whom he chose to help him raise our prestige were among those who helped lower our prestige.

President John F. Kennedy is nobody's fool. Sooner or later, he will weary of the superfluous advice which he receives from those who are always proved to be wrong by the course of events. He will ask himself why the course of events proves them to be wrong. He will then set up his own policy without the counsellors of defeat. When he does, the United States will again go forward. It will not go forward by retreating.

SYLVIA PORTER

Economic Brains

Intelligence In That Area Functioning At Best In History

Dreadful though our intelligence operations in the military and diplomatic spheres have been recently, in the economic area our intelligence never has functioned as superbly as today — and as a result never have our policy-makers been so well informed about what is going on in our economy, what is threatening us, what is not.

Thus, never in our entire history have we been so aware of what we should and equally important, what we should not do to strengthen our system against attack from within or without.

As I've been pondering the debacle in Cuba, the contrast between the failures of our Central Intelligence Agency and the magnificent progress in our economic intelligence has hit me for the first time. There are implications here, I submit, which go to the heart of our financial well-being, our nation's survival.

As an illustration, our vastly refined economic intelligence means that we have developed another powerful weapon against a repetition ever again of a severe depression. We know enough now to spot any threat of a depression far, far in advance, and never underestimate the fact that, since economic depressions are made by man, they can be controlled by man.

It means that we have an ever-increasing ability to make even our recessions milder and milder. We have learned how to identify recessions in their infancy and we are learning how to set into motion quickly forces which can and do moderate the recessions, shorten their life.

It means that we have a greater capacity to curb inflation cycles too. As we have learned how to identify recessions in their infancy, so we have learned how to recognize recoveries at their state. This helps eliminate the danger that we'll mistakenly try to fight a recession when inflation is the threat. It surely protects us, from swinging to a vicious wage - price spiral without realizing the spiral is happening.

It means that we also are better able than ever before to safeguard our dollar's value and reputation. We're sharing our economic intelligence with our friends abroad and they're sharing theirs with us. We're therefore able to cooperate and we are cooperating on an unprecedented scale to defend our currency and other currencies of the free world against speculative raids, destructive attacks.

This is all so new! It has been only in the past couple of decades that the great pioneers in studying the business cycle — the late Wesley G. Mitchell, the very much alive Arthur F. Burns and Geoffrey H. Moore — have pinpointed the economic indicators which flash in advance the approach of a business downturn or business upturn.

Until a few years ago, we didn't even know where to look to find out what was happening to our economy while it was happening.

It has been only in the past several years that the Federal Reserve System has refined its own information sources to the point where it is able to catch turns in the economy at their beginning so it can properly mold its credit policies to curb declines, spur advances.

We never would have sunk so low in the depression '30s if we had had the economic intelligence to guide us to a counter-attack. We never would have been so battered by inflation in the postwar '40s if we had had the economic intelligence to convince our policy makers how premature it was to smash all controls, push for massive tax cuts.

Now, though, we have the intelligence, the guides. Despite the fact that for political and psychological reasons the White House denied there was a recession throughout 1960, authorities within the Administration started acting to fight it as far back as March of a year ago. Despite the fact that the 1961 recovery is still fragile, persuasive evidence began accumulating two months ago that the recession was ending, and armed with this knowledge our government is not making the mistake of urging tax or spending steps which would restimulate inflation.

In the sphere of economic intelligence, we are in the lead and gaining steadily. At this time of agonized reappraisal, it's one cheerful note which is mighty important to our system's survival.

WASHINGTON SHORTS

PENN STATE BATTLING — Most Democrats in Pennsylvania now believe there will be knockdown and drag out Senatorial contest in that state next year, with Governor David Lawrence battling to unhorse United States Senator Joseph S. Clark. Lawrence is prohibited by Pennsylvania law from succeeding himself as Governor. No Republican Senatorial candidate is yet in sight in the Keystone state.

RIGHTS HEARING

Lassiter Refutes Negro Witnesses

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Dist. Atty. Albin P. Lassiter of Monroe, representing Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion at the Civil Rights Commission hearing here Friday, refuted statements by four complaining Negro witnesses from Ouachita Parish.

Lassiter, in effect, said that Dr. John I. Reddix, lawyer James Sharp Jr., P. Rayfield Brown, Negro minister, and Henry Carroll have no basis for their complaints of discrimination — and that the four have been highly successful in their professions in Ouachita.

He told the commission that much of the testimony by the four at last September's hearing would not be admissible in any court of law.

Gremillion, in Washington on the tidelands issue, appointed Lassiter and assistant attorney general Henry J. Roberts of New Orleans to represent him at the commission hearing.

Registrars of voters from 11 parishes were summoned to the hearing yesterday morning, to answer charges made at the last hearing by Negroes who said that Louisiana Negroes are discriminated against when they register as voters.

The Monroe district attorney also pointed out that despite repeated investigations of the Ouachita registrar of voters' office by FBI agents and the attorney general's office, no government lawsuits have been brought against the local registrar of voter, Mrs. Mae Lucky.

Only two federal suits, one by Sharp and one by Reddix, have been filed, and the parish won both suits.

"The NAACP did not file any suits," Lassiter noted.

He also pointed out that although the four witnesses repeatedly referred "to the figures of 4,000 to 5782 Negroes as having been struck from the registration rolls in 1956 .... no mention was made of the fact that during the same period of challenges 6778 white voters were challenged, or approximately 1000 more white voters than Negroes."

"It seems rather clear that certain officials of the United States are far more interested in forcing the Negroes of Ouachita Parish to vote than are the Negroes themselves.

"It should be remembered that the same power that can be used to force the right or privilege of one man on another can be used to abolish the rights and privileges of both men.

"This is a historical fact and about one billion human beings now live under that kind of power," Lassiter said, speaking of communism.

Here is how Lassiter answered charges of discrimination, made by Dr. Reddix, Sharp, Rev. Brown and Carroll:

He said that although Reddix had complained because he was challenged off the registration rolls in 1956, he had made no attempt to re-register.

"For some reason unknown to me, Dr. Reddix presented himself on April 7, 1961, to the Registrar of Voters of Ouachita parish, made an application, and registered," Lassiter said.

Dr. Reddix's lawsuit against Mrs. Lucky, which claimed that he had been deprived of the right to vote, was then dismissed by federal Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr. in federal court at Monroe on April 24. Reddix did not oppose this.

Sharp testified against Madison parish registration procedures.

"The testimony of Sharp that he practiced law every day in Ouachita, owned land and property, an automobile and was a registered voter since 1952 was most interesting and certainly could not be used to prove discrimination or abuse," Lassiter said.

He called Rev. Brown's testimony "inconsistent and unreliable."

Although Rev. Brown complained against the Registrar, the Negro minister actually showed that Negroes are being registered as voters in Ouachita when he made the following statement:

"When I (Brown) first went into the church (in West Monroe), I found that a number of the parishioners had been removed from the roll by purges, so we set up a registration school in the church for the membership, and we have registered just about all of our members of our church through this medium."

Henry Carroll, principal of Carroll High School in Monroe, also testified last September at the hearing in New Orleans.

Carroll's testimony "proves that he has been successful financially and otherwise in Ouachita Parish. He testified that he had been registered since he became 21, and was immediately restored to the rolls after challenge, when he appeared and answered the challenge as prescribed by Louisiana law," Lassiter pointed out.

"The other testimony of these four witnesses would not be admissible in any court of law as being rank hearsay, opinion and defamatory in character without corroboration," said Lassiter.

He said that the Negroes' testimony was not sufficient for the commission to make a report on which the president and congress could base fair and impartial judgement.

"The great hullabaloo about the '1956 Purge' in Ouachita Parish was made and is being kept alive by a very few politically ambitious people.

"The vast majority of Negroes in Ouachita Parish have never been, and are not now, interested in voting. The vast majority of both white and Negro voters challenged in 1956 have made no effort to re-register, because they simply and honestly are not interested and will tell you this is true if you will ask them," said Lassiter.

"The large number of Negro and white voters challenged in 1956 had been placed on the rolls by a Louisiana political faction through force, coercion, unkept promises and in general political skullduggery," he added.

State Plans Bonds Sale; Bids Asked

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The State Bond and Building Commission Friday called for bids June 1 on the sale of another $14 million in bonds to finance capital improvements at colleges and institutions.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis is chairman of the commission, which administers his $60 million bond program set up by the 1960 legislature. The commission sold the first $1 million in bonds April 17 for an average 3.612 per cent interest.

The commission has allocated $17½ million for construction improvements.

A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer, told the commission he wanted to get the bond sale completed durin gthis fiscal year. He said a maximum of $20 million a year could be sold but he wanted to hold the figure to $15 million to get a better interest rate.

In other action:

The commission heard a report from officials of Charity Hospital in New Orleans that an estimated $460,000 may be needed to repair the structure.

It moved to settle a disagreement with the State Board of Education by inviting board representatives to attend a meeting June 1 of the commission.

The board, at a meeting June 1, will invite chairman Nash Roberts Jr., New Orleans, and members of the Education Board's building committee to attend.

Roberts wrote the commission the education board has voted a second time to withhold action on sites for buildings to be constructed until it has a formal meeting with the commission.

Col. W. D. Adkins, executive secretary of the Bond and Building Commission, said the education board had informed the commission earlier of its decision, but he wrote back the commission had no intention to name any building sites.

Music Week Observance Slated Here

Twelve special musical events are planed for next week, as part of National Music Week proclaimed in Monroe by Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard.

In his proclamation, Howard points out that the Week "affords an incentive to use music as a vital community force throughout the years."

"Observance of Music Week affords an opportunity in our community for the dissemination of wider general public enjoyment and appreciation of good music by means of special programs," he pointed out.

"Lets Make Music Around the World," is the theme of the observance, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

GETS TELEGRAM

Mrs. C. Arthur Bullock, national federation president, has received a telegram from President John F. Kennedy, in line with the observance:

"A vibrant creative America speaks in many voices, not the least of which is her music, which breaches all barriers and reaches all hearts. Please accept my best wishes for continuing success in bringing more and more music to a world that increasingly hungers for it," the President said.

Purpose of the observance is "to focus the attention of the public on the dynamic influence of music as an effective medium standing between all peoples and of communication and understanding between all peoples and as a spiritualizing force which helps relieve the tension of our era," according to Miss Jonnie Bankhead, chairman of the Week for Musical Coterie.

Four young musicians will perform at a Benefit Concerto Concert, to start off the week Sunday, May 7, at Shergouse Elementary School auditorium in Collegetown.

The Concerto, starting at 3:30 p.m., will take approximately one hour. Proceeds will go into the String Student Scholarship Fund, maintained at Northeast State College for outstanding string students.

They will be accompanied by members of the Twin City Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Eloy Fominaya of the Northeast State music faculty.

Miss Marie King Nelson will play the Weber Concertstuk; Miss Donna Gartman will play the first movement of the Mozart A Major. Rex Morris will play the first two movements of the Mozart E Flat Major and Mary Lou Holley will play the first movement of the Saint - Seans G Minor.

Other programs during the week are:

Monday, May 8: Lee Junior High band program, 2 p.m., at Georgia Tucker Elementary School; "Spring Serenade" benefit concert, 8 p.m., Neville Auditorium.

Tuesday, May 9: Elementary Choral Program, 9:15 a.m., Barkdull Faulk Elementary school.

Wednesday, May 10: "The Frog "Prince ballet for children, 4 p.m., over a local television station.

Thursday, May 11: Elementary Choral Program, 9:15 a.m., Lida Benton Elementary school; Student Recital in Biedenharn Hall on Northeast College campus, 3 p.m.; Ouachita Parish band concert at OPHS auditorium, 8 p.m.; Northeast Concert Series concert, Marjorie Kalil, soprano, Neville auditorium, 8:15 p.m.; Louisiana Tech Concert Series symphony, Howard Auditorium, Ruston, 8 p.m.

Friday, May 12: Elementary Choral Program, Georgia Tucker Elementary school, 9:15 a.m.; String Student Recital, Sherrouse Elementary school auditorium, 1:15 p.m.

Police Store Abandoned Car

An abandoned auto was stored Friday by Monroe police after it had been left for four days at an Oak and Hart Street location.

Police said the auto was a blue Ford bearing 1961 Louisiana license numbers 507-857.

Bodies Of Two Slain Women Found In Car

ALVIN, Tex. (AP)—The bodies of two women, riddled by shotgun blasts, were found in a car Friday. A four-county search was started for a man who told a minister he had "one more relative to kill."

Alvin Police Chief Glenn B. Shepherd said Albert J. Farris, about 58, of Liverpool, was sought. He was the husband of one of the dead women.

Katherine Ryan Farris, 40, operator of a rest home at Liverpool, a small community 25 miles south of Houston, and her sister-in-law, Verna Farris Albright, 62, were found dead in a car on State Highway 35. They had been shot in the face.

The Rev. William C. Webb Jr., of Almeda, told police Farris called him and said: "I have one more relative to kill before they get me."

10 Initiated By Tech Girls Society Group

Presidents are Mary Ann Wilkins of El Dorado, Ark., for Adams; Jane Hammet of Shreveport for Dudley; Cherry Pratt of Ruston for Pearce, and Ann MacMillan of Shreveport for Aswell.

These presidents will serve on the board of Associated Women Students and will take office at the installation on May 12. The AWS is the governing body of women students at Tech and its membership includes all regularly enrolled coeds.

Other officers chosen for next year are as follows:

Adams: Rosalyn Thames, Mangham, vice president; Susie Brigan, Winnfield, secretary; Charlott Null, West Monroe, treasurer; and Virgina Kirkland, Pioneer, social chairman.

Dudley: Betty May Andrews, Shreveport, vice president; Ann McKenzie, Homer, secretary; Ann Ballard, Farmerville, treasurer; and Sue Voss, Springhill, social chairman.

Pearce: DeWanna Bryant, Winnsboro, vice president; Annette Maranto, Shreveport, secretary; Anne Harris, Baton Rouge, treasurer; and Toby Gramberry, Bastrop, social chairman.

Aswell: Martha Norris, West Monroe, vice president; Judy Walker, Shreveport, secretary; Dorothy Tannehill, Tullos, treasurer, and Frances Prestridge, Vidalia, social chairman.

Judicial System First Aim During Red Takeover

West Monroe Lions were told Thursday night that the first target in a Communist take-over of a country is its judicial system.

Speaking to Lions on a special program in connection with statewide observances of Law Day underway this week, Monroe attorney Tom Hayes listed as a prime illustration of this fact the method employed by Fidel Castro in solidifying the effects of his Cuban revolution.

He declared, "Our system of government owes a deep debt to our judges and to our rule of law."

Hayes was introduced by West Monroe Lion and City Attorney Charles Traylor, who arranged the special show for the group's regular meeting Thursday at the Highland Park Country Club.

Also featured on the program was a 15 minute color film, "Bill of Rights" which dramatized the birth of the Constitution and explained the significance of its first ten amendments to the American way of life.

FILLED WITH GADGETS

Astronaut Capsule Space-Age Marvel

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The lightbulb-shaped capsule which carried astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. 115 miles high and returned him to earth safely Friday is a space-age marvel of electronics and ingenuity.

Nine feet tall and only six feet across its blunt base, the shiny black capsule is crammed with buttons, switches, levers, dials, gauges, warning lights, coils, condensers, radio tubes, seven miles of wiring — and a man.

Under the tremendous pressures of climb and descent the pilot is crushed by stresses far greater than the human body can take without special support.

Thanks to the couch, Shepard was able to withstand eleven times the weight of normal gravity — and still come out of it able to operate the complex controls around him.

Within the pilot's reach or sight are 165 instruments, lights and switches. Nearly all may be operated either by the pilot or by engineers on the ground.

There is one switch, however, which only the pilot can work. Until it is thrown, the big rocket which boosts the capsule into space cannot be fired.

The astronauts call this the "chicken switch."

When this lever is raised, small rockets on a red-painted tower atop the capsule fire and pull the capsule up and away from the booster. There a parachute opens to lower the capsule to earth.

The lever can be operated by the pilot, by engineers on the ground or by automatic instruments which sense trouble before it happens — sometimes before the pilot or the engineers are aware of the trouble.

This is vital. The capsule must be in a very precise attitude to re-enter the atmosphere safely. Only its blunt base is shielded against the 3,000 degrees of heat that air friction builds up as the capsule plunges back into the atmosphere.

Directly in front of the pilot is something that looks like a small television screen. Actually it is the viewer for his periscope, which is extended after he reaches space.

Through this, Shepard said he was able to see the whole East Coast of the United States at the top of his climb.

Above the pilot's head is a small window, which gives him a direct look at the earth and the stars.

Around him are a number of red warning lights. If the pilot fails to heed them, that is, to take action remedying the trouble, a buzzer sounds.

Once all the hazards of space flight are past and the capsule has plunged into the atmosphere, two parachutes open. One, a small six-footer, helps pull a big 63-footer into action.

This can be done automatically, or by ground engineers, or by the pilot himself. If these chutes fail to operate normally, there are two more in reserve.

The ingenuity of McDonnell Aircraft Corp. designers continues to function even as the capsule is striking the water.

Shepard was picked up only four minutes after falling in the Atlantic, but his space craft probably could have stayed afloat many hours if necessary.

When sealed tightly, as it must be for space flight, the capsule is naturally buoyant.

Additional buoyancy comes from a landing-impact bag, or air cushion, across the capsule's base. This can operate only after the plastic heat-shield has been discarded — an operation which can be initiated either on the ground or by the pilot.

Once the heat shield has been dropped, the impact bag inflates and thus absorbs some of the shock of the landing. It also helps buoy the capsule.

Exactly how long the capsule can float depends on whether it has been damaged badly enough by impact to spring a leak.

Bicycle Is Found

A bicycle was reported found Friday at Forsythe and North 19th Street here, and it was theorized it had been stolen and abandoned. It was described by Monroe police as being a 26-inch red and white Schwinn with no fenders.

Kennedy Meets With Cardona

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy conferred Friday with Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, chairman of the Cuban Revolutionary Council which organized the Cuban refugees for the disastrous attempt to overthrow Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The White House, in a brief report on the unannounced meeting, said Kennedy and Miro Cardona discussed ways of assisting Cuban refugees in this country.

HISTORIC MILESTONE

Nation Jubilant Over Space Trip

By United Press International

Millions gathered around radios and TV sets in their homes, at bars and restaurants and on street corners for the countdown and, finally, the blast off that sent the 37-year-old Navy commander aloft.

Newspapers and broadcast stations were flooded with calls asking about the success of the shot.

Shepard's wife, two daughters and his parents were among those who waited and watched. A huge crowd gathered on the beaches near Cape Canaveral. There were cheers when the rocket started its flight and as its progress was reported.

President Kennedy, who watched most of the televised coverage of the flight, described it as "an historic milestone in our exploration into space."

"But America still needs to work with the utmost speed and vigor in the further development of our space program," he said.

He extended "special congratulations to astronaut Shepard and best wishes to his family who lived through this most difficult time with him."

"It's fabulous," said Josephine Martino, a New York beautician. "I feel like celebrating. We're really on our way—in fact we've caught up with and passed the Russians, to my way of thinking."

"I think it's the greatest thing that ever happened," Los Angeles maintenance man Willis Reed said. "It won't be long now til we can go to the moon."

Mrs. David D. Kerr of Atlanta watched the blast off on TV, then rushed out to tell her neighbors but couldn't find anyone who was interested. "I'll just have to wait until my husband gets home to talk about it—no one around here seems to care," she said. For herself: "I was delighted."

Mrs. Lois Krentz, a registered nurse in Ft. Atkinson, Wis., said, "Oooh, how wonderful. That's the best news we've heard."

Shepard's physical condition was the concern of many. All expressed relief that he had landed safely and climbed from the Mercury capsule.

"I only hope that the astronaut is safe and sound," Chicago cigar stand clerk Abe Herstein said.

"Not only are the scientists to be congratulated but the care that was taken shows our high regard for life," said Manhattan attorney Cameron K. Wehringer.

Whitfield Wharton, manager of a large department store in Kinston, N.C., said "There were so many people crowded around the sets in our television department, I had to go to a drug store to watch."

Mrs. Albert Mohr, a nursing home proprietor in Janesville, Wis., said Shepard should be sent on a goodwill tour to Russia and "let them know what we can do."

Randy Childree, a service station attendant in Hollywood, said the shot would help the world prestige of the United States "but we've still got a long way to go."

"As for Shepard, he's a man of real guts," Childree said.

Other comment:

Mrs. Virginia Keith, of Roanoke Va., said, "I'm thrilled to death. It just proves the Russians aren't as far ahead of us as they think they are."

Carl J. Schmitt, 41, New Kensington, Pa. "I was so happy I actually cried. Tingles went up and down my spine. I've never had an experience like that in my life."

Martin Kolens, Brooklyn shop owner: "I'm elated! I feel even better to know Shepard could control his rocket."

Space Hero Ends Trip In High Spirits

GRAND BAHAMA ISLAND (AP)—Spaceman Alan B. Shepard Jr. flew here Friday and calmly strode into hospital seclusion to wind up the historic first American step into space.

Grinning broadly, he shook hands with and slapped the backs of two other astronauts, Virgil I. Grissom and Donald Slayton.

They asked how it went and he said everything went fine.

From the airport, he rode to a special hospital in the blue sedan of Capt. Hugh May, commander of this island missile tracking station.

Shepard will be here "at least 48 hours," said Lt. Col. John Powers, spokesman for the astronauts.

Shepard walked a few yards from the car to the hospital and was put in bed immediately. He landed here about 3½ hours after his blastoff from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Powers said he had never seen Shepard perform more coolly, calmly and precisely.

As Shepard stepped off the plane, he shouted "Hey, Gus" to Grissom.

Shepard waved to newsmen but did not make any comment nor answer questions as to how it went.

He is scheduled to tell the full story of the emotional, mental, physical and technical aspects of the flight before leaving here for Washington.

Newsmen were kept in back of a rope barricade some distance from Shepard and could hear only snatches of his conversation. At one point, he said, "I had a shower," in reply to some question or jest from his fellow astronauts.

Grissom said he was "very pleased and I have to admit a little envious." He said he thought he has a "fair chance of being on the next launch. I certainly do want to be the next one. As far as that is concerned I wanted to be on this one."

Slayton said that when "Shepard started talking at the apogee about how nice it looked up there, I wished I had been up there too."

Powers said the flight followed schedule almost exactly.

He said the last man on the gantry was Gunter Wendt, an employe of McDonnell Aircraft Co., who shook Shepard's hand and said "good luck" and the hatch came up.

Daughter Calm Over Father's Trip In Space

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Thirteen-year-old Laura Shepard's only comment on her father's flight into space was a quietly murmered, "fine."

The word was in response to a question by a schoolmate at Principia School, where she is a seventh grade student.

Laura, school president David Andrews, dean of girls Mrs. June Protzmann and another staff member watched the launching on television in Mrs. Protzmann's living room.

"She sat very quietly and restfully in her chair and made no comment during the launching and recovery," Andrews said.

"She is a very quiet child," he said.

"After the space shot was over the news was received that Commander Shepard was safe, a schoolmate came in and asked her how she felt," Andrews said. "She made only the one word comment," he said.

FIRST U.S. SPACEMAN

Shepard Is Good Athlete, Intelligent

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Navy Cmdr. Alan Bartlett Shepard Jr., 37, drew on a background as an athlete and an intellectual to become America's first spaceman.

He combines a genius-level intelligence quotient of between 135 and 147 with a fondness for keeping trim by water skiing and road running.

His life has been marked by a determination to do more than enough.

He found water skiing with two skis too prosaic. He learned to zip along on one ski and now is looking for a boat fast enough so he can "ski" barefoot—with no skis at all.

When fellow astronaut, Marine Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. began running two miles every morning to keep his weight down, the slim Shepard, 5 feet 11, weighing 160 pounds, took up road work, too.

Shepard excelled in "school work" among asfronauts.

"He is always reading technical manuals and the big policy-type journals, the kind the admirals and generals say should be read," his wife, Louise, once commented.

But his intense technical interest does not prevent him from having a sense of humor.

Questioned on why he was chosen as an astronaut, he remarked: "maybe I'm the link between Ham the space chimp and man."

He had one wish he didn't get. Asked how much notice he would want before making a flight, he said he would want to be told just before sunrise on the day of the test.

Actually, he was named last Tuesday. Then the flight was postponed until Friday.

Shepard, without any false modesty, frankly wanted to be the first man into space.

Prior to the Soviet Union orbiting a man, Shepard had summed it up this way: "There are lots of answers why I want to be the first man into space, but a short answer would be this: "The flight obviously is a challenge and I feel that the more severe challenge will occur on the first flight, and I signed up to accept this challenge."

One reason he was able to accept the challenge, he said, was that his wife and two children, Laura, 13, and Juliana, 9, took "a calm, rational approach" to it.

Shepard was born Nov. 8, 1923, at East Derry, N.H. and is a Christian Scientist. His father is a retired Army colonel, but the son chose the Navy.

He was graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1944.

He saw World War II action by serving aboard the destroyer Cogswell in the Pacific. He began flight training after the war and served aboard aircraft carriers in the Mediterranean, then became a test pilot.

Shepard flew high-altitude research missions, helped develop the Navy's in-flight refueling system and contributed to research on carrier landing techniques.

He had some narrow escapes as a test pilot, with engines flaming out and canopies ripping off at high speeds.

Shepard has 3,700 hours of flying time—none quite like the 15 minutes he spent aloft Friday.

Father Of No. 2 Astronaut Wires Congratulations

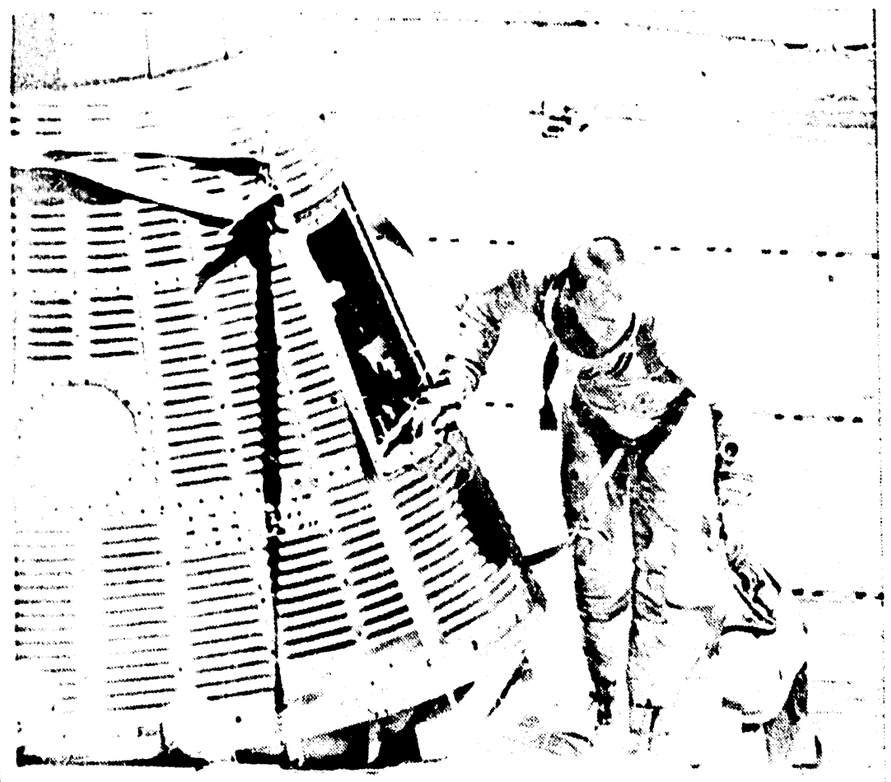
NEW CONCORD, Ohio (UPI)—John Glenn Sr., father of America's No. 2 astronaut, Friday wired congratulations to the parents of Navy Comdr. Alan Shepard Jr. and to the astronaut himself following the successful firing of the nation's first manned space rocket.

Glenn said, "We were anxious for our son to be the first, but the main thing is that the shot was successful and Shepard got back down safely."

Glenn said he and his wife "saw every bit of it" on television and were "very much thrilled . . . I'm glad the boy is back safely."

"We regret very much our son couldn't have been the first one, but since he couldn't be, we're very much satisfied. We sent Shepard's mother and father a wire congratulating them and also a wire to Shepard himself," Glenn said.

"I don't think we are any different than anyone else in wanting the shot to be successful, both for the good of the country and the astronaut," he added.



Historic Journey's End

Here Is How Shepard Ended Historic Flight

ABOARD THE USS LAKE CHAMPLAIN (UPI)—Here is how Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., ended his flight through space and returned to the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain:

—The carrier crew first spotted the capsule's heat shield glowing when it pushed through the atmosphere. But the first sight of the space craft itself was when its big red and white parachute blossomed out.

—The capsule hit the water within four miles of the carrier, and three Marine helicopters were hovering over it.

—Lt. George Cox of Eustis, Fla., co-pilot of one helicopter, snipped off the capsule's aerial and guided a hook through a cable at the top of the space craft which was then lifted upright in the sea.

—Shepard opened the hatch of the space capsule and slid into a "horse collar" harness lowered from the helicopter and was pulled into the plane's cabin.

—"Thank you," he said to Cox and Lt. Wayne Koons of Lyons, Kans., the pilot.

The helicopter then attached a line to the capsule and hauled it back to the carrier.

Hometown, Parents Celebrating

DERRY, N. H. (AP) — The whole town—and more — turned out Friday to help the overjoyed parents of America's first astronaut celebrate Navy Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr's successful flight into space.

The astronaut's parents Mr. and Mrs. Alan B. Shepard Sr., with their daughter Pauline, were the stars of the biggest parade Derry has ever seen, and with the biggest gathering of spectators in the town's history.

Gov. Wesley Powell came to Derry to join in the parade.

The governor greeted Mrs. Shepard with a hug and a kiss as he said:

Powell disclosed to newsmen he is planning a statewide celebration with a demonstration in honor of Cmdr. Shepard. That will include a state-wide holiday.

Along with the Shepards, an open convertible also carried their daughter's husband, Gordon Sherman of North Attleboro, Mass., and their children, David, 11, and Betsy, 8, the astronaut's nephew and niece.

The parade included units from the Marines and Navy at Portsmouth, N. H., and Air Force detachment from Pease Air Force and National Guard outfits from Grenier Base in Manchester and from Concord.

Derry residents who weren't in the parade were on the streets and sidewalks to watch it as all stores and business establishments closed for the afternoon.

The town was decorated from one end to the other with flags, bunting and crepe paper streamers.

The town burst into a full scale holiday when the flight was over. Schools were closed. A parade was organized. Flags and bunting broke out on all sides.

Some even seemed to want to change the name of Derry to "Spacetown, U.S.A."

As the countdown hours wore on, the Shepards tensely watched TV reports.

"We didn't say much," Shepard said. And their attention didn't wander an instant until the shot was over and the word came that Shepard had landed safely. They relaxed when they heard he was on the deck of the carrier Lake Champlain, moving around in his usual fashion.

The Shepards said they prayed all through the flight for the safety of Alan and for success. They were secluded for the past few days but when it was over they were happy to be interviewed and to receive the congratulations of friends and neighbors.

Shepard couldn't remember what she said. "But she was deliriously happy," he added.

Shepard told newsmen he thought his son's feat was an important step for the United States as a big advance and a morale booster in the American space program.

The elder Shepard is a veteran of both World Wars and a retired Army lieutenant colonel.

The Shepards expect to see their son in a few days when they have word he will be in Washington.

Mrs. Shepard said they were all "concerned because of possible danger but we had complete confidence in the Mercury Project."

Hero's Wife Beams While Gives Views

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—A beaming Louise Shepard said Friday her husband's journey to the fringe of space was "just a baby step" compared to new challenges ahead.

Radiating confidence in her astronaut husband, Alan B. Shepard Jr., she said Friday's feat helped soothe her disappointment over Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin's head start into space.

"They — the astronauts — knew they were so close. They knew like everybody else that they could do it," the 34-year-old brunette said after she had time to collect her thoughts.

"Would you like to see your husband in orbit around the earth?" she was asked. She hesitated.

"Well," she said, drawing the word out, "it is a hard question, but," she sighed, "yes, since he wants it so very badly."

Poised, and obviously delighted with the space program, Mrs. Shepard said, "This is just a baby step, I guess, to what we will see."

She had hoped to report to reporters and through them to the nation what her husband had told her by telephone of the flight. But the expected call did not come in time.

"He's still isolated with the medics as far as I know," she said.

"I thought maybe Alan would be able to call right away. Now I don't know whether I'll hear from him for another 48 hours."

Mrs. Shepard is a glowingly beautiful woman, tanned, with a sparkling white smile and deep-set eyes. Somehow, though, she does not photograph well.

She faced a curious world Friday in a simple chocolate brown linen dress, topped with an embroidered pink cardigan sweater. On her feet were low-heeled brown and white spectator pumps.

"She always looks like she stepped out of a bandbox no matter when you drop in," a neighbor, Mrs. John Matthews, commented. "Her house is just as immaculate as she is."

Alan, who is a golf enthusiast, has tried to teach "his girl" the game too.

Although all the astronauts have been invited to visit President Kennedy on Sunday, Louise Shepard will continue to do what she has always felt is the right thing—stay home and keep things as normal as possible.

This has been her most difficult of all trials, she told reporters, since Alan was appointed one of the seven astronauts.

Still, it was obvious that from now on the little girls, as their parents, are to be of national interest. "I never thought about it," Mrs. Shepard replied modestly when she was asked if she realized the Shepard name was now of historic importance.

A niece, Alice Williams, hadn't thought much about anything but her birthday Friday. She had agreed to postpone celebrating being 10 until Saturday.

But photographers, radio and TV men latched on to her and the Shepard daughter, Juliana, also 10, whenever they emerged from their police-protected house.

At last the desperate mother sent a message to reporters asking them not to question the children further.

Daughter Laura, 13, attending Principia Boarding School in St. Louis, missed all the front lawn excitement, but mother and daughter shared mutual pride in Daddy's accomplishment during a phone call Friday morning.

Shepard Had Normal Reaction During Flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The doctor who kept check on body reaction of astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr. during his space flight Friday said Shepard performed as a "perfectly normal man."

Dr. Stanley C. White said that during the long period of more than four hours during which Shepard was in the capsule before lift off, he was "probably the most calm" of anybody in the ground and support crew involved in the project.

White kept tab on Shepard's heart, respiration, and body temperatures by means of radio signals sent from sensors attached to Shepard's body.

He said Shepard "followed the script as laid out," that he called out the sequence of events in a clear and loud voice, with the only strain during the great stress of gravity forces during the re-entry into the atmosphere.

During re-entry, Shepard experienced 11 times the force of gravity, White said.

The doctor reported that Shepard's heart beat was normal and that his pulse during most of the flight was 105.

The only time that Shepard's pulse picked up to 120 was during great stresses of launch and re-entry.

White spoke in the control center where the men who had monitored the mission reported across the board that the astronaut, the capsule, the rocket, the recovery forces, did a virtually perfect job.

Astronaut Donald K. Slayton, who was in voice communication with Shepard throughout the long wait in the capsule, said the astronaut uttered "no complaint" and was fine. During the flight, he said, Shepard performed all maneuvers strictly by the book.

"He just got tired sitting there that long," Slayton said.

Mort Schler, who kept a check of the environmental control system, said that the temperature in the astronaut's pressure suit stayed at 75 degrees throughout the flight except when it rose to a peak of 77 during the re-entry, when the friction forces create terrific heat on the capsule.

The capsule's internal temperature was mostly around 95 except during re-entry when it rose to 102, Schler said. He reported that cabin and seat pressure was at 5½ pounds per square inch most of the flight, another performance close to expectations.

Other Astronauts To Have Turn In Space Flight

WASHINGTON (AP)—James E. Webb, chief of the civil space program, sent congratulations to spaceman Alan B. Shepard Jr. and his associates Friday and assured the six other astronauts they will have their turn.

Webb said in answer to a question that he expects the United States to place a man in orbit this year "or certainly early next year."

Webb made his remarks for a taped Columbia Broadcasting System program, "Eyewitness to history" scheduled for television showing at 10:30 Friday night.

He declined to answer most questions or conduct a regular news conference because he said, all officials immediately connected with the program were at the launching and he did not wish to share their spotlight.

Webb noted that the launching had been accomplished in the face of full news coverage, in sharp contrast with the Soviet launching of Yuri A. Gagarin for his orbit flight.

Nevertheless, he said, this may not be the best way of operating, and the buildup of publicity for future space shots, could hinder operations. He said publicity on failures has cost this country prestige.

What They Said About 1st Ride In Outer Space

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Spaceman Alan B. Shepard Jr. — "Boy, what a ride!"

Mrs. Shepard, his wife — "Wonderful, wonderful, wonderful."

Kennedy, by radiotelephone to Shepard — "I want to congratulate you. We watched you on TV, of course, and we are awfully pleased and proud of what you did."

Army Capt. Jerry Strong, a doctor who examined Shepard after the landing—"Excellent physical condition, fine spirits, there is nothing we can determine that is in any way abnormal after the flight."

Lt. Col. Alan B. Shepard Sr. (Ret.), the astronaut's father — "We are all very happy. We are happy, too, for the thousands of technicians and so many others who worked so hard and so long to make this a success."

Mrs. Alan B. Shepard Sr., the astronaut's mother — "When we heard 'All OK', then our arms went up and around each other."

GIANT STRIDE FORWARD

Congress Cheers Manned Flight

They hailed his space flight as a giant American stride in the space race with Russia. But some cautioned that there are still challenges ahead.

Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, who is president of the Senate and head of President Kennedy's Space Advisory Committee said Shepard "will never be forgotten."

Rep. Daniel J. Flood, D-Pa., a member of the House defense appropriations subcommittee, also commended Kennedy and said he hoped the President would award the Medal of Honor to Shepard at the White House Monday.

Flood said he also would ask Congress to approve legislation authorizing a special gold medal for Shepard.

Speaker Sam Rayburn said: "It was a great feat. I am very proud. It was very gratifying to me as I feel sure it was to all the American people that we have demonstrated that we can send a man into space."

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont.: "I'm delighted on behalf of both the astronaut and our country that the flight was so successful. It's indeed great news."

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill.: "It's wonderful! This reaffirms the faith of the country in our capacity to do these things and to move ahead in the space field."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., one of the Senate's foremost military experts: "Commander Shepard has given the free world its biggest shot in the arm—more than all the diplomats and politicians have done in a generation . . . a great gamble has paid off handsomely for the prestige of the United States and the Western World at a critical moment in our history."

House Space Committee chairman Overton Brooks, D-La.: "A tremendous thrill . . . while we have not succeeded in beating the Russians, it hasn't put the Earth there's one thing we can take great pride in," Brooks said, "we made no effort to hide what we were doing."

Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee: "A great achievement . . . it means we will soon put a man into orbit."

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the defense appropriations subcommittee: "I'm excited and encouraged. This is just a first step but it looks like we are on the way."

Senate Republican policy chairman Styles Bridges of New Hampshire—Shepard's home state: "It was a great feat for our country. It confirmed my frequent statements that our country had the capability of putting a man into space. The precision with which the flight was handled was remarkable."

Sen. Robert S. Kerr, chairman of the Senate Space Committee—the flight proved the nation's "overall space program is going forward vigorously, constructively and effectively." The significance of Cmdr. Shepard's words, "okay all the way," will inspire all Americans and the people of the free world from now on."

Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn.: It takes us far toward catching up with and surpassing the Russians."

Assistant Senate Democratic leader Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota: "This achievement represents our first step in a long climb to explore the mysteries of outer space." Humphrey urged greater effort to achieve international cooperation on space projects.

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R-Wis.: I'm not out of an emotional drunk. It's a tremendous step in the right direction. I'm happy that we demonstrated what is needed to get to the moon or further up or whatever is necessary."

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., a member of the Senate Space Committee—"We can take national pride in what was accomplished today . . . in continuing this research, we will need the kind of courage displayed today by Cmdr. Shepard. I hope the good work will go on and be expanded."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of the Space and Armed Services Committees — "It was wonderful. How could it be better?"

New Box Score On Space Feats

By United Press International

The space box score:

Satellites and probes to date: U.S. 10, Russia 15.

Still transmitting: U.S. 9, Russia none.

FUTURE SPACE FLIGHTS

Backup Astronaut Eager To Go Next

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — "As far as we're concerned, give the engineers and other people a couple days rest and let get another rocket on the pad soon."

That was Lieut. John H. Glenn Jr., the "backup" pilot on Friday's first American space flight, expressed the feelings of the other six U.S. astronauts after Alan B. Shepard Jr. was retrieved safely from the sea.

Indicating he would like to make the next trip, Glenn said, "We're looking forward to future flights and hope they will all be the same as today's."

Leroy Cooper, another astronaut, said he, too, would like to take a rocket ride soon, and praised the teamwork which went into Friday's mission.

"It was a real privilege to be a member of the team and to see the dedication that went into it," Cooper said. "The success was purely a matter of teamwork."

All of the astronauts participated in some phase of Shepard's flight.

Two of them, Scott Carpenter and Walter Schirra, flew overhead in F106 jet planes to view the launching from above. If something had gone wrong, they might have been able to help steer recovery forces to Shepard's space capsule.

Cooper maintained voice contact with Shepard from the blockhouse before launch, then handed off to Donald Slayton, who was the voice link from the control center throughout the 15-minute flight.

Glenn and Virgil I. Grissom, the hard or "standby" pilot, functioned as technical advisors to the various specialists monitoring the 15-minute flight in the control center.

Grissom and Slayton later flew to Grand Bahama Island to be on hand when Shepard arrived at the medical facility there.

"He looks great, feels great," said Grissom, who said he would like to be chosen for the next ride.

Glenn, who would have taken Friday's flight if Shepard had become ill, said he followed Shepard's progress in space closely.

"I listened to Al talk and he knew exactly what he was doing at all times," Glenn said. "He performed his assigned tasks just as they were listed on a 3x5-inch card which was fitted on the instrument panel in the capsule.

"I had a similar card in the control center for a check list," said Glenn, 39, a Marine lieutenant colonel. "He ticked them off almost perfectly. I'm sure he didn't have to even refer to the card on his panel because he was so well-acquainted with the assignments through months of training in a simulated capsule."

Glenn said that Shepard manually operated the spacecraft through much of the flight with the pitch and yaw control shifting the vehicle to different positions laid out in advance.

"Al's description of what he saw through the periscope came in very clearly. He reported the extent of cloud cover, the beautiful sight, and the various landmarks which we have studied on maps of the Florida coast and the East Coast up to Cape Hatteras. Al read off a number of them we had studied."

Jury Chosen For Second Mattox Trial

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP)—More than four days of questioning ended Friday with selection of a jury in the second Jon Mattox murder trial.

Testimony in the much publicized coat-hanger strangulation case will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Attorneys exhausted 22 challenges "without cause" while picking the all-male jury and one alternate. Only 286 of the special 400-man venire were questioned or excused by agreement and sickness.

The handsome, husky youth was convicted of the crime and sentenced to life imprisonment last May 14. The Mississippi Supreme Court later reversed the decision on certain non-admissable testimony.

As testimony proceedings begin Saturday, the state is expected to pinpoint the approximate time of the quiet Sunday morning murder and to establish where the body was found.

Special prosecutor Bill Burgin, Dist. Atty. Harvey Buck and county attorney Lowery Lucas will act for the state.

After the prosecution attempts to prove the whereabouts of Mattox at the time of the slaying, the defense is expected to produce their once missing witness, Joe Douglass, a Columbus lumber salesman.

Douglass is reported to have seen Mattox some seven miles from the place of the murder about the time the state says it happened.

In speaking of Miss Grayson's testimony, Cunningham said the defense has "witnesses no one knows of."

Three Louisiana Teachers Win Study Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Louisiana teachers won fellowships for summer study in journalism this year in the annual Wall Street Journal Newspaper Fellowship awards, the newspaper announced Friday.

They were among 477 high school teachers sharing in the approximately $160,000 grants.

Louisiana winners, their schools and the university they will attend:

Mrs. Zona M. Connally, 2909 Donald Dr., Bossier City, Southfield school; University of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Elizabeth Lawson, 3854 Lisa Lane, Shreveport, Woodlawn High School; Louisiana State University.

Carry Back Leads Derby Field To Post

CARRY BACK appears to be whispering something to his exercise boy, Whitey Woolridge, after the Kentucky Derby eligible worked out at Churchill Downs yesterday. The colt, owned by Jack Price, ranks as one of the favorites for Saturday's $125,000 added Derby. (AP Wirephoto).

Rains May Hamper Race In Louisville

By JOHN CHANDLER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The rain poured down on Louisville Friday as 15 horses awaited the call for the 87th Kentucky Derby.

But, strangely enough, not one of the trainers with the leading contenders for Saturday's great 3-year-old classic seemed concerned about the prospect for an off track at Churchill Downs.

Carry Back remained the 5 to 2 choice for the mile and one quarter spin, and the steady rain that may taper off into showers by Saturday won't hurt his chances of past performances.

Mrs. Katherine Price's Florida-bred colt is the only one of the 15 slated to start that is labeled a "superior" mud runner. Carry Back scored two of his most important victories on a sloppy track, the Garden State Stakes last October when he was a 2-year-old, and the Florida Derby April 1.

"I like the mud, since it probably will hurt the others more than us," said Jack Price, who trains Carry Back for his wife. "He revels in the slop."

Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, a speed horse who was beaten by a head in the Florida Derby, is listed as a good mudder. Crozier broke the Churchill Downs' track record for the mile Tuesday in winning the Derby trial. The track was dry and fast.

Robert Lehman's Ambiopoise, second and beaten 3½ lengths in the Garden State, carries a fair mud running label. So does the Alberta Ranches' Four-and-Twenty, hero of the Santa Anita Derby. Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster, who upset Carry Back in the Wood Memorial, the Jacnot Stable's Light Talk, placed first in the Arkansas Derby then Bars Clef was disqualified and J. Graham Brown's On His Metal.

Bars Clef, owned by Mrs. Vera Smith and winner of the Louisiana Derby and Emil V. Dust's Dearborn are good mud operators. There are no mud ratings for the others—Alberta Ranches Flutter-by, Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' D. Miller, Brae Burn Farm's Jay Fox, Eastwood Stable's Loyal Son, Wilbur Clark and William Ball Gosden's Ronnie's Ace, and Jacobs Stable's Sherluck.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Facts and figures on Saturday's 87th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs: Probable post time—1:20 p.m. EST. Starters—15 three-year-olds entered. Purse—$125,000 added to nominating and starting fees making gross of $143,000 on basis 15 starters. Purse distribution—Gross to winner $[illegible]. Net basis 15 starters, second, $25,000; third, $12,500; fourth, $5,000. Distance—1¼ miles. Favorites—Mrs. Katherine Price's Carry Back, 5-2, and Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, 3-1. Last year's winner—Venetian Way, 2:02 2-5. Record—2:01 2-5 by Whirlaway, 1941. Weather—Cloudy with possible showers. Probable track condition—Muddy. Crowd—[illegible] expected. Television and radio—1:15-1:35 p.m. EST (CBS).

Cincinnati Nips Braves 6-5 In 12th

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Chico Cardenas' sacrifice fly in the 12th and a three-run homer by Wally Post in the ninth provided the Cincinnati Reds with a 6-5 comeback victory over the Milwaukee Braves Friday night.

A triple by Gene Freese and a walk set the stage for scoring position in the 12th at the expense of Milwaukee reliever Ron Piche.

The Reds went into the ninth trailing 4-1. They scored one run on the strength of Don Blasingame's double that sent Ellio Chacon home.

Then Vada Pinson singled and with Seth Morehead replacing Milwaukee starter Lew Burdette, Post knocked his pinch-hit home run into the left field bleachers. It was third of the consecutive and per Cincinnati ahead [illegible].

Billy Brown, West Monroe pro and amateur Roy Heard of West Monroe won the Municipal Golf Pro - Am Golf Tournament yesterday with a low ball score of 56, 16 under par.

The second and third place was shared by Leonard Warren, Bastrop pro and Roy Heard, and the team of Tommy Atchison of Monroe and amateur Jerry Gregg of Sterlington who shot 59.

Eight pros and 60 amateurs participated in the tourney. Today is the last day for qualifying for the Municipal Golf Tourney to be held May 7.

NEVILLE CLOSE SECOND

Ruston Bearcats Triumph In District Track Meet

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Ruston's Bearcats won the District 2-AA track and field meet here last night by scoring 92 points to Neville's 72½ for Neville, 72 for Haynesville and 45½ for Jonesboro.

One district record was tied and two broken in the meet which saw the host Bearcats qualify seven individual stars and all men in eight individual events three of the relays for the state meet to be held at Northwestern.

Ruston's Allan Carpenter tied the low hurdle mark with a 20.8 clocking and broke the high hurdle standard with a time of 15.1. Haynesville's Gary Johnson broke the pole vault mark with a vault of 12 ft., 6 in.

Second place Neville qualified seven individual stars and all three of the relays for the state meet to be held at Northwestern.

The Tigers won the mile relay, and lost to Ruston in the two shorter shuttle races, and Haynesville in the mile race.

A staff was host most of the races in the track races. Ruston's Van Max Hays won both the sprints, and Neville's Howard and Bryant placed second and third to Lowery of Haynesville in the 440 yard dash.

Carpenter again edged Neville's Courtland Gray in the hurdle races, while Robert Payne of the Tigers won the broad jump and big John Segers took first in the discus.

Members of Neville's winning mile relay were Courtland Gray, Steve Jefferson, Bunzy Bryant and Jim Howard. The state meet is set on the NSC campus May 5-6.

Creed Champ Sixth Time In Golf Meet

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Clifford Ann Creed, whose ability to recover carried her over some rough spots, tucked away her sixth Louisiana state women's golf title today by defeating Miss Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, 6 and 5.

The 22-year-old Alexandria golfer-ena defending champion, took the lead on the first hole and except for the 6th and 7th where the two were tied, set the pace all the way through the 36-hole finals.

Miss White, a 20-year-old junior at Texas Christian University, won the 152-yard 6th hole with a par 3 and the 7th was halved with birdie pars. It marked the last time the two finalists were even.

Miss Creed took a 2-up lead at the end of the first nine and went to lunch 3 up.

AT MIDWAY MARK

Hebert Maintains Lead In Champion Tournament

By BOB MYERS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sure hitting Jay Hebert whacked out another sub par round of golf Friday—a 5-under-par-67—to hang onto the lead at the midway mark of the $52,000 Tournament of Champions.

Coupled with his blistering 66 in the first round, the 38-year-old Lafayette, La., professional increased his lead over the field to two strokes with 133.

Hebert, with a large gallery following him and Tommy Bolt as the last twosome of the day, had a 34-33—67 for the 7,000-yard par 36-36—72 Desert Inn Country Club course.

Unlike Thursday's blustery afternoon, the weather was bright and relatively calm as the select field of 26 pros played the round.

Veteran Sam Snead added a 67 to his initial 68 for 135 and at this point poised the nearest threat to Hebert.

Tied at 136 were Tommy Bolt with a 69; Canada's Stan Leonard, with a 67, and golf's hurrying man, Doug Ford, 69.

CHICAGO DROPS 4TH STRAIGHT

Detroit Wins 8-4 Over White Sox

CHICAGO (AP)—The hard-hitting Detroit Tigers handed the slumping Chicago White Sox their fourth straight setback 8-4 Friday night to remain in first place in the American League.

Norm Cash and Dick Brown, a pair of former White Six players, added to the woes of the Chicagoans by driving home five of Detroit's runs.

Cash and Brown each drove in two runs in a big first inning when the Tigers scored four times. Cash knocked in another with his second single in the second inning.

For the third straight game, Sox losses resulted from the hitting of players they have traded off since winning the American League pennant. Their two previous losses

Bacon is hitting .297 for the season but has rapped the ball at a .375 clip in league play. Tech meets McNeese State in a crucial twinbill in Lake Charles Saturday.

Solons Bang Tribe, 5-2 In Opening Tilt

CLEVELAND (AP)—Rookie Ed Hobaugh held the Cleveland Indians to five scattered hits in pitching the Washington Senators to a 5-2 victory Friday night in the opener of a four-game series.

The 26-year-old right-hander, knocked out in his first two starts, went all the way in winning his first major league game. He has lost one. He struck out two batters and walked three.

The loser was starter Johnny Antonelli, obtained by the Indians in a winter trade with the San Francisco Giants. He was making his fourth attempt to win his first American League game. The 31-year-old southpaw worked three innings and gave up four runs on five hits, including a two-run homer by Harry Bright. Antonelli's record now is 0-3.

ON KRALICK'S SIX-HITTER

Twins Snap Losing String With 5-1 Win Over Bosox

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota's Jack Kralick turned in another sterling pitching performance Friday, stopping Boston 5-1 on a six-hitter.

The crafty southpaw fanned six in winning his second against a lone defeat before 3,937 fans. The victory snapped Minnesota's three-game losing streak.

The Twins jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the second and were never headed. Boston starter and loser Tom Brewer walked the first three batters with Harmon Killebrew scoring when Billy Gardner hit into a double play.

Boston tied it in the third on consecutive singles by Brewer and Chuck Schilling, a throwing error by catcher Earl Battey and Gary Geiger's sacrifice fly.

The Twins regained the lead in the third on an infield hit by Reno Bertoia, an infield out, a wild pitch and an error by shortstop Don Buddin.

Kralick scored the third Twins' run in the fifth when he led off with a sharp single, went to second on a sacrifice and, after a walk and Dobbek's single, scored on Killebrew's sacrifice fly.

Battey's double down the right field line and Gardner's run-scoring single in the sixth knocked out Brewer and brought on Dave Hillman.

Three base hits and Battey's RBI single accounted for another Minnesota tally in the seventh.

ON MAYS RUN

Giants Take 4-2 Win Over Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Willie Mays scored from first base on a routine single to left field by Orlando Cepeda in the third inning Friday night and it was the winning run as the San Francisco Gians gained a 4-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Mays, after walking, raced to third on Cepeda's line drive single to Bobby Gene Smith, then kept right on going home before the astonished Phillies even knew what was happening.

Actually Cepeda helped set up the daring maneuver. After turning first, he let out for second and the Phillies forgot about Mays as Smith threw to Ruben Amaro. The shortstop pegged hurriedly to second baseman Tony Taylor, trying to get the batter in a rundown as Mays jogged over the plate.

To make matters worse for the chagrined Phillies, Cepeda escaped the rundown.

It was the Giants' ninth victory in their last 12 games and increased their National League lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates to two full games. The Bucs lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-0. For the Phillies it was their fifth consecutive defeat and 13th in 19 games.

Juan Marichal (2-1) held the Phillies to seven scattered hits—three of them by John Callison, including a solo homer.

The Giants used three of their 10 hits for two runs in the second with Ed Bailey and Marichal getting the vital RBIs. The Giants added an insurance run in the ninth on a double by Jim Davenport and Chuck Hiller's single.

League Lead At Stake In Lake Charles

RUSTON, La., (Special) —First place in the Gulf States conference race will be at stake Saturday afternoon when Louisiana Tech meets McNeese State in a twinbill in Lake Charles.

Tech currently leads the pack by a one game margin with an 11-3 mark, but McNeese, with a 10-4 loop record, could grab the lead with a sweep.

Tech Coach Berry Hinton hopes to send veteran hurlers Sonny Parker (4-1), and Charlie Fuller (4-0) against McNeese, which is expected to counter with Tom Mixon (2-4) and Jim Bischoff (4-2).

McNeese has won nine in a row and has not lost since Tech edged the Cowboys 1-0 and 3-2 in a doubleheader here. Parker edged Mixon in a 1-0 mound duel and then combined with Fuller to beat Bischoff in the second tilt 3-2.

After the Saturday pair, Tech returns home to meet USL in a twinbill Monday and close out the campaign here against Southwestern in another twinner Wednesday.

Martin Captain

DAVIDSON, N. C. (AP)—D.G. Martin Jr., son of the president of Davidson College, will be captain of the Davidson basketball team next season. He was elected by his teammates, it was announced Friday.

TRIBE HOLDS FOURTH

Indians Play Twinbill At Southwestern Today

Northeast's baseball team is in action here earlier, nipping the Lafayette today for a GSC dou Demons 1-0 in the opener then bleheader with Southwestern losing the nightcap 5-4 starting at 1:30 p.m.

Northeast currently is in fourth place in the conference race with a 6-3 mark. The Bulldogs are a notch below at 5-3 but the outcome of the twinbill could switch the standings.

Southwestern started the season with a rush, jumping into a first-place tie with Northeast, but have steadily dropped back since winning only one of their last eight conference tilts.

Indian mentor George Lutley didn't indicate who he would start on the mound today, but it is expected that he will stay pretty much with the rest of his lineup. This shou'd be Eddie McGoxan at second, Phil Petras at short, George Bigan on first, John Pace in left, Leroy Redden in center, Donnie Brunson or James Sourlock in right, Gary Fields on third and Dewey Smith catching.

Little Boys Baseball

Slaug Jordan of Pulp and Paper robbed Firestone's Robert Holloway of a no-hitter in the sixth as Firestone won a 2-1 game in Northside Little Boys baseball last night.

Holloway fanned 14 batters. His catcher was Ronnie Wiggins.

Gary Farley's double was the best hit against Pulp and Paper, which used Jimmie Griggs, and Tommy Cox in an attempt to halt the winners. Bubb Rogland caught for the losers.

In Northside action Ouachita Bank nipped First National Bank 6-5. Gary Andrusch and Floyd Leonard formed the winning battery. Dale Taylor and Clint Barnett the losers.

15 BASE HITS

Dodgers Down Pittsburgh, 10-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) The Los Angeles Dodgers exploded for 15 base hits and took advantage of five Pittsburgh Pirate errors Friday night, overpowering the defending world champions 10-0 and handing Bob Friend his first loss of the season.

Tommy Davis, Norm Larker and Willie Davis sparked the Dodger attack, accounting for seven of the safeties and driving in two runs each.

Tommy Davis socked a double and two singles, Larker connected for two singles and Willie Davis boomed a triple and a double. Maury Wills chipped in with a double and two singles.

Dodger starter Johnny Podres had a six-hit shutout going when he had to be lifted at the start of the seventh inning because of a pain in his left forearm. A Dodger spokesman said the southpaw hurt the arm while batting in the fifth.

Yankees Nip Angels 5-4 On Homer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clete Boyer drove in three runs, two of them with a ninth inning homer, as the New York Yankees twice came from behind and defeated the Los Angeles Angels 5-4 Friday night.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Yankees and it kept them in a first-place tie with the Detroit Tigers, who beat Chicago.

A crowd of 17,301, largest so far this year at Wrigley Field, turned out for the Yankees' first American League appearance on the Pacific Coast.

Angel pitchers halted Mickey Mantle's hitting streak at 16 games. The Yankee outfielder scored a run but went hitless in four tries. He was purposely walked in the ninth.

Mantle reached base on an error in the fourth, took second on an infield out and came in with New York's first run on a single by Elston Howard.

Area Thinclads In Tech Action

RUSTON, La. (Special) —Plain Dealing, Mangham, Vidalia, and Waterproof won district track and field titles in the annual North Louisiana rally held at La. Tech Friday afternoon.

In District 1-B Plain Dealing piled up 72 points to barely edge Bernice, which had 68½ points. Mangham had 87½ points to win in District 2-B over Columbia, which had 79½ points.

Vidalia had 81½ points in the District 3-B competition to nudge Crowville, which had 72 5-6. In Class C Waterproof won easily with 103½ points, a wide edge over second place Sikes which had 72.

The top performances of the day came in the Class C division where Larry Shirley of Sikes won the 880 yard run 2:09.7 and the mile in 4:35.5.

Bengals Score Early, Down Tulane By 6-3

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana State scored four runs in the first inning and had little trouble beating Tulane 6-3 Friday in a Southeastern Conference baseball game.

Tommy Demont opened for LSU with a single and came home on a triple by John Bailey. Hadley Smith then homered to score Bailey ahead of him. A single by Jim Plauche and an error by Tulane catcher Bob Cornett gave LSU another run.

Sophomore pitching star Lynn Amedee held Tulane hitless until the sixth when pitcher Jon Peebles doubled. Gus Wenzel homered for Tulane in the eighth. It was Amedee's fifth victory against one loss.

LSU Tigers Set For Spring Tilt

BATON ROUGE, La., (Special) — A closely - contested battle is anticipated Saturday night when Louisiana State University's Tigers climax spring football drills with the annual Purple-Gold game in Tiger Stadium. Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m.

Pre-game comparisons of the divisional squads give the Purples an edge in size, and the Gold team an edge in experience, while both appear to be evenly matched.

The Purple lineup includes four 1960 starters — Bobby Richards (220) and Billy Booth (213) at tackles, quarterback Jimmy Field and halfback Jerry Stovall, plus lettermen Gene Sykes at left end, guards Dan Hargett and Monk Guillot and center Dennis Gaubatz.

The Gold team, except for two positions, is the same as the 1960 Go team, those exciting offensive specialists that perked up the Tiger attack last season.

The Golds also have two lettermen reserves in fullback Earl Gros and tackle Fred Miller. Fullback Steve Ward is the only letterman reserve for the Purples.

LSU coach Paul Dietzel plans to observe Saturday night's action from the press box, while Tiger assistant coaches Charles McClendon and George Terry direct the Golds, and Purples, respectively.

Open Display Of Space Shot Wins A Point

LONDON (AP)—Millions of Europeans crowded around their radios Friday to hear about Alan B. Shepard Jr. and his rocketing journey to the threshold of space and back.

The U.S. achievement made headlines and aroused admiration throughout Western Europe—Even though the edge was taken off the flight by Russian Yuri A. Gagarin's global orbit three weeks ago.

Radio stations broke into their scheduled programs with a direct relay from the United States that captured the tension and excitement of the final countdown and blastoff at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

In Japan, radio and TV programs were interrupted to announce the feat, from launching to landing.

America's frank and open handling of its first manned space flight was contrasted favorably with the secrecy surrounding Gagarin's trip.

"It was a great privilage to be allowed to participate in Shepard's flight," said Kenneth J. Carter, secretary of the British Interplanetary Society. "I was pretty well up there in the capsule with him."

Carter fairly bubbled with enthusiasm over the American success.

"The Americans had the right way of doing it," he said. "Unlike the Russians, they allowed us all to take part in this fantastic adventure."

West Germany came through with the first governmental greeting.

A spokesman in Bonn said the Konrad Adenauer administration "congratulates the Americans on this technical and scientific accomplishment."

In London, a hundred members of the U.S. Embassy staff raised a cheer as word came over the radio that Shepard had returned safely.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED

MOSCOW (AP)—The 39th anniversary of the founding of the Communist party organ Pravda was marked Friday by cartoons in the organ and other Soviet papers portraying the Western press as permeated with rumors and under the control of monopolists.

Answers To Questions On Decorating

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I have a real problem with my living room which is long, dark and narrow. I know that light colors would brighten it, but young children prohibit their use. Walls are a rather dark knotty pine, and rug is beige, black and brown tweed. Can you suggest color for draperies, sofa and two occasional chairs?

A: Tweedy or printed fabrics in medium shades will take more kindly to soil and hard wear than even dark colors in smooth, unpatterned fabrics. Therefore, I would suggest you continue the tweedy effect you have begun with your rug. Since curtains are less subject to hard wear than upholstery, I would suggest a light yellow, nubby fabric for these; sofa in a beige and brown tweed. Choose a printed fabric which employs autumn colors for the two chairs. Pillows and accessories in vibrant yellow with some white milkglass pieces.

Q: My TV room is only 8 x 10 feet. Furniture includes toast chair, red leather chair and blonde mahogany television set. What color walls, ceiling, carpet and draperies? What color for a small sofa?

A: For look of size and harmony, paint walls and ceiling white with apricot cast. Draperies in ivory and carpet rich apricot tone. Small sofa would be best in medium toast or apricot. Accent color introduced in red chair should be repeated in a box, throw pillow or ashtray.

Q: Living room walls and carpet are pale gray. Sofa and one chair are turquoise. Another chair is dark grey. What color draperies and throw pillows would you suggest?

A: For a very subtle color scheme, use pale celadon green for draperies and pillows. In accessories add some accents in black and silver or clear crystal for sparkle.

Q: I want to paint my kitchen walls and get new curtains. The floor is pink and charcoal checkerboard tiles. Cabinets and breakfast set are maple. What colors would you suggest?

A: Paint your walls white with woodwork or ceiling in a pale pink; Curtains in pink and white print. Chairs might have tie-on seat cushions in a bright accent color — yellow, hot pink, or turquoise — which could be repeated in canisters.

Tallulah Tea Honors Miss Charlyne Smith

Miss Charlyne Smith, bride-elect of James E. Wyche III of Lake Charles, was complimented with a tea at the Tallulah home of Mrs. R. G. Long on Sunday afternoon. Entertaining with Mrs. Long were Mrs. Alpha Randall, Mrs. Archie Stewart, Mrs. W. J. Wilson, and Miss Jane Vernon Sevier.

Receiving with the honoree, who wore a pink organza afternoon dress with an orchid corsage, were her mother, Mrs. B. D. Smith of Vivian; Mrs. James E. Wyche Jr. of Monroe, mother of the groom; and the hostesses.

Spring flowers decorated the reception rooms and the tea table was centered with an arrangement of daisies, white verbena and mock orange. Alternating at the punch service were Miss Shirley Edmondson and Miss Pat Brooks. Miss Sandra Rose Smith, sister of the bride - to - be, presided at the bride's book.

Terry Cloth Takes To Color, New Designs

Cotton terry cloth steps out from its humble shower room beginning into the glamour field of fashions. This season the most fashionable gals will want to cover-up with new terry cloth creations.

Outfits ready-made for the beach crowd includes: jackets, beach dresses, dry - off pants and full skirts in luscious shades of grape, lemon, lime, apricot, vivid blue . . . and for the more demanding chic-dresser, there is bright red, or gaily striped combinations as well as the brightest whites.

This year when you want the best in beachwear . . . a towel will do! Here's some simple hints or your own creations; a plain white towel with fringed ends will make a poncho - style cover-up, just cut hole in the center of the towel for the head and stitch it down the sides leaving space enough for the arms, and with fringed ends merrily hanging around the thighs.

Garden Club Meets With Miss Wyatt

The Sprig and Twig Garden Club held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday, May 2, in the home of Miss Ginger Wyatt.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. B. L. Talton. Three guests, Mrs. J. R. Franton Jr., Mrs. Paul White and Mrs. W. J. Wyatt were introduced.

Horticulture report was given by Mrs. Talton, and Mrs. R. F. Wilson gave a demonstrative lesson on Church Arrangements.

Each member brought an interesting flower arrangement. Mrs. R. F. Wilson used a white container and a Madonna to create a triangle design of white Magnolia and their own foliage. Miss Wyatt created a mass arrangement of spring flowers and green dock in a white compote. Mrs. Joe P. Adams used roses and green fern to make a horizontal table arrangement in a green and gold container. Door prize was won by Mrs. W. M. Rasberry.

Refreshments were served to: Mrs. Joe P. Adams, Mrs. W. M. Rasberry, Mrs. B. L. Talton, Mrs. R. F. Wilson, and Miss Ginger Wyatt.

New Officers Installed By Garden Club

Mrs. Tommy Holmes, president, presided at the final meeting of the year of the Patio Garden Club on Wednesday, May 3. The luncheon meeting was held on the glazed porch of Bayou DeSiard Country Club. Mrs. Minnie Mae Haney of Birmingham, Alabama, was welcomed as a guest.

Placed down the length of the banquet table were gaily-wrapped May Poles in graduated sizes. At the base of each were yellow day lilies and sprigs of English ivy.

The president thanked Mrs. Jack Inabnet who made the arrangements for the luncheon. Special recognition was accorded Mrs. Jim Williams, who had charge of the club's Flower Show in April. Photographs of the prize - winning arrangements were shown the members.

President, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Jr. President - Elect, Mrs. John Perpont. Rec. Secretary, Mrs. Stan Bagwell, Corresponding Sec., Mrs. Tommy Holmes, Treasurer, Mrs. Rudy Cannon, Program Chairman, Mrs. Roy Cole, Jr.

Models Help Design Clothes

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The majority of fashion models are never seen by the public. They are the house models, who show new clothes to press and buyers.

Unlike fashion show and photographic models, house models help create the clothes. Every design has certain favorite models on whom samples are fitted. More than 1,000 sketches may have been made, but when the sample is actually on a live woman, her instincts began.

Some designers begin on the model herself, by passing sketches. And all admit that a model's reaction to a design influences their judgement of what stays in the collection, what goes out.

Models tend to specialize. Their type and personality may make them the ideal junior, or sportswear girl, or high fashion clothes horse.

What's New

By JOYCE SCHULLER
United Press International

A new product called the "wax-pack" has been designed to take most of the work out of waxing. The packs have zippers. Unzip them and fill with four teaspoons of paste wax, close zipper and snap the pack over the brush of the floor polisher. When the polisher is turned on, Wax is pressed out through the holes in the wax pack and distributed evenly over the floor.

A new toy called a "boxmobile" has been developed by a New York mother. It actually is a kit which contains panels of pressure tape. These simulate the front, back, dashboard and wheels of a car or a train locomotive. The kit can convert any carton from the grocery store into a play automobile or locomotive.

An aluminum trellis stake that doubles as a root feeder and deep watering device is now being marketed. The stake, useful for installing any kind of metal or wood trellis, is slightly larger than the nozzle of a garden hose, and is perforated liberally in the length which is driven below the ground level.

Water or plant food poured into it quickly reaches roots, eliminating the waste that goes with surface feeding and watering. The stake is made on aluminum tubing. The stake is packaged ten to a carton and is available through garden supply centers.

Meatless Days

NEW YORK (UPI) — Luncheon salad is great for a meatless meal. Combine 1/3 cup of chopped or ready-diced almonds with 2½ cups of drained canned pears, 1 cup of cubed American cheese and ½ teaspoon of prepared mustard and 1 tablespoon of cream into 1/3 cup of mayonnaise. Pour over salad, toss lightly, and serve on lettuce cups. Serves 6.

No Need

It's not necessary to scald evaporated milk when you are using it in a yeast bread or coffee cake.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Here's A Teen-Ager Who Should Be Saluted

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I just turned 15. Last night was the fifth date of my entire life. It was my second date with J.

We double dated and had a great time. When J. insisted on buying the other girl and fellow home first (although the fellow lives next door to him) I thought something was fishy. Then he started to talk about "Snowballs" which is what fellows call girls who are not as friendly as "Fireballs." I knew he was building up to a goodnight kiss, and decided he wasn't going to get one.

When we got to the door I said "Goodnight. Thanks for a lovely time." He said "If you can't say thanks any better than that, it's my last date with you." Ann Landers: Then he left—mad.

My girl friend said I was stupid not to give him a little goodnight kiss because now he'll probably never ask me out again. I don't want to be considered fast, but I don't want to be known as a prude, either. Was I wrong? — SNOWBALL

Dear Snowball: You were right and I salute you. A girl who has learned how to say "no" in the many skirmishes is well prepared for the major battles that are ahead.

If the boy passes the word that you're stingy with your kisses he won't damage your reputation one bit. Fellows like to strive for the prize. Only then is it considered an achievement. I'll bet anything he'll come back.

Dear Ann Landers: I am taking divorce in a few weeks. No matter of course it's messy mess. I shouldn't have been so foolish as to think I could straighten out a woman's boy who was an alcoholic. So I look the Lord we didn't have any children.

The question is this: I want to get my maiden name back and forget I ever knew this jerk. My friends tell me it is not respectable for a woman who has been married to try to pawn herself off as "A maiden." I'm not trying to pawn myself as anything. I just don't want any reminder of the guy, least of all his name. Is it proper? — MISS I HOPE

Dear Miss: If you and the jerk have no children, it is perfectly proper for you to go back to your maiden name.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman of years old who has never married because of an invalid mother who has been my responsibility for the past 35 years.

Of late I've been feeling so miserable that I've wanted to go to sleep and never wake up. I went to the doctor and answered all his personal questions in the presence of his nurse.

Yesterday, while shopping in the market a neighbor came up and said "I hear you've been so depressed lately you're in danger of losing your mind." I was so embarrassed that I almost collapsed right there. I asked her who's spreading such a thing and she replied "The nurse who works for Dr. — told the girls in her bridge club." She went on to relate details which could only have come from the nurse or the doctor, and I know very well the doctor doesn't talk. What shall I do? — R. S.

Dear R. S.: It is difficult to imagine such an unforgivable breach of professional ethics, and perhaps you have misunderstood the source of the gossip you heard. I suggest you go see the doctor again and clear up the whole ugly mess, in the presence of his nurse.

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for "Ann Landers'" booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Retail Sales Show Slight Dip

NEW YORK (UPI)—Retail sales in the past week dipped slightly below a year ago on sluggish demand for major appliances and new cars, trade of Dun & Bradstreet showed Friday.

Total dollar volume in the week ended May 3 was unchanged to 4 per cent below a year ago, according to spot checks by the statistical agency.

JFK Signs Bill To Hike Minimum Pay

He said the act gave him great satisfaction but added that "this does not finish the job." He predicted "greater gains in the months and years to come."

It extends the wage-hour act to 3,624,000 additional workers, mostly in retail and service jobs, and raises the minimum wage from $1 an hour to $1.25 by 1963.

The increase will be in two steps. On the effective date of the new law the minimum will rise to $1.15 an hour. This will mean an increase for an estimated 1.9 million of the 23.9 million workers already covered.

The $1.25 minimum will take effect two years later, bringing an increase to about 1.1 million additional workers.

For the newly covered workers, the minimum will remain at $1 an hour for the first three years. Starting in the fourth year it will rise to $1.15 and to $1.25 in the fifth year.

The initial $1 minimum is expected to mean an increase for 663,000 of the 3.62 million newly covered workers. These workers will not become entitled to overtime pay until the third year.

DEAR ABBY

Harder To Lose Face Than Youthful Figure

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have a sister-in-law who claims she weighs the same today as she did when she was married 12 years ago, which is 112 pounds, and also a big lie. Anyone can see she weighs at least 135. I lost my patience with her yesterday when I had a few girls in and the subject of weight and diet came up, and she made this ridiculous statement. I asked her to step on my bathroom scale and prove it. She refused, and left my house in a huff, saying I called her a liar. I didn't call her a liar. I only asked her to back up her statement. When my husband came home (he is her brother) I started to tell him the story and he had heard it already. She called him at work. He says I should call her and apologize to keep peace in the family. I think she owes me an apology. Who owes who an apology? —OSE

DEAR ROSE: Call her and tell her you are sorry you offended her. Since you knew she was lying, you were unkind to embarrass her in the presence of the others. It's bad enough to lose one's figure without losing face, too.

DEAR ABBY: There is a certain girl in the eighth grade who sure thinks she is something! She has a shape on her like a high school senior, and she wiggles (on purpose) when she walks.

When older boys ask her for a date she tells them she is sorry she can't accept because she has another date. We happen to know that she can't accept because her mother won't let her date yet.

How can we help her to be more truthful? She is losing friends.—EIGHTH GRADE GIRLS

DEAR GIRLS: I doubt if the girl you are worried about will miss the friends she is losing.

DEAR ABBY: I am a single woman (24) who has been keeping company with an undivorced man for two years. He has spent whole nights telling me how miserable his home life is. He said he never knew the meaning of love until he met me. He also said he hated his wife because she poisoned his children's minds against him. Yet when I would mention divorce, he always had an excuse. I can't figure him out.

I recently met another undivorced man. His home life is also miserable. Only this one says he will divorce his wife and marry me. But how do I get rid of the first one? Do I owe him anything? —PBX

DEAR PBX: You don't "owe" an undivorced man anything. And you will probably find him not very hard to get rid of. About "Undivorced Man Number Two": Most married men who step out say their home lives are miserable. Wise up and don't spend two years as a wailing wall for this one. He doesn't owe "you" anything either.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Wondering in Washington": You can "get used to" a wart on the end of your nose if you live with it long enough, but that doesn't mean you will learn to love it.

Yes, Abby will answer your letter personally if you write to "Abby," in care of News-Star—World, and enclose a stamped,

Soviet Says U.S. Lags In Space Race

MOSCOW (UPI) — Noted Soviet ballistics expert Georgi Pokrovsky said Friday the United States man-in-space program still lags behind the Soviet Union by roughly two years.

"Today's (Friday's) flight is in some measure like those of June, 1959, in the Soviet Union when we launched and recovered animals from rockets. The result and the scientific interest is about the same," he said.

"But there is a difference of about two years between those rocket launchings and the flight of Yuri Gagarin. The U.S. experiment today (Friday) is proof that the effort Soviet scientists have made in this field are correct.

In June, 1959, the Soviets launched two dogs named Daring and Snowflake and a rabbit named Little Martha in an unannounced flight in a rocket and recovered them safely.

The same month in a second launching, Daring was sent aloft again with another dog, again to an unannounced height—and recovered.

Another Soviet scientist, Ivan Shevlakov, vice director of the Moscow planetarium, told a Western correspondent "we are very happy that this experiment has succeeded. I am sure Soviet scientists will send their congratulations to American scientists and to the pilot."

Shevlakov had not heard the news until he was informed by a Western reporter.

JFK Drafts Public Works Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is reported considering a $1-billion public works and training program to aid the unemployed with special emphasis on jobless youth and family breadwinners.

Kennedy's advisers are drafting a new economic message for Congress, due to be sent to Capitol Hill in the next few weeks.

It will review the state of the economy and propose additional steps aimed at reducing the present backlog of nearly 5½ million unemployed. Its goal is understood to be to cut the current unemployment rate of about 7 per cent down to 4 per cent or less.

Kennedy's advisers are understood to feel that administration measures already cleared through Congress— special unemployment compensation benefits, aid to depressed areas and a higher minimum wage — together with those proposals still pending, are insufficient to restore full employment.

The President recently met with a group of senators, Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg and Chairman Walter W. Heller of the Council of Economic Advisers on possible further economic measures.

1. A big public works plan designed to create jobs for idle craftsmen and factory workers producing the required materials.

2. A plan to train workers whose jobs have been made permanently obsolete by machines or technology to go into occupations for which there is a manpower need. This would concentrate on idled workers who are 30 years or older, most with family responsibilities.

3. A training plan for youth. This would be aimed at young people who either quit school without acquiring skills or who, even with an education, still can't find employment. This contemplates creating a Youth Conservation Corps, such as the New Deal Civil Conservation Corps.

In many ways the planners consider the last program as possibly the most important because the labor market is going to be flooded, according to census figures, with young men and women going into the labor force during the 60s.

Jail Extension Election Slated Here Tuesday

Polling places throughout Ouachita Parish open at 6 a.m. Tuesday for the $200,000 parish jail extension bond issue election.

Property owners will vote on two propositions: 1. Shall Ouachita Parish incur debt and issue bonds for $200,000 to run five years with interest not exceeding four per cent yearly to acquire real property, construct necessary buildings and purchase equipment.

2. Shall Ouachita Parish levy a special tax of one - half mill on the dollar on all property subject to state taxation for 10 years for maintenance, support and improvement of the jail extension if proposition number one is approved.

The jury has taken an option on $31,000 worth of land, totaling 40 acres, just south of Monroe in Hunters Bend area, for the jail site.

THIS WAS THE CIVIL WAR

By MERTON T. AKERS
United Press International

In May, 1861, George Brinton McClellan entered the Civil War.

This 35 - year - old Pennsylvanian would remain down stage center on the war scene for a year - and - a - half, the most controversial general of the conflict — a hero to some, a failure to many more. Many of his lines were delivered as soliloquys and addressed to voters and politicians, rather than to the limited audience of his military role.

In a war which was overcrowded with generals whose political ambitions often outran their military prowess, McClellan stood for a brief moment at the top, but there was a Greek chorus chanting doom in the wings.

MUFFS BOTH CHANCES

He was the only general of the Army of the Potomac who had two golden chances to decisively defeat the Army of Northern Virginia and capture the Confederate capital, Richmond. He muffed both of them without ever having been beaten decisively himself.

Graduated second in a class of 59 from West Point in 1846, McClellan had a distinguished career behind him at Ft. Sumter time. He seemed to be the best military talent the Union possessed at the moment.

He won three brevets in the Mexican War. Then he spent a year in Europe studying military operations. His report, including a section on the Crimean War, was hailed as a masterpiece. By 1857 he was a captain, but resigned to go into business, becoming by wartime a vice president of the Illinois Central Railroad, one of whose lawyers was Abraham Lincoln. There would come a time when this ex-vice president of a railroad would ignore Lincoln sitting in the McClellan living room and go to bed without seeing him. By that time McClellan was commander - in-chief of all its armed forces, including McClellan himself. (Still later in the dark days of 1864, McClellan would run against Lincoln for the presidency and be soundly trounced, his last defeat.)

STILL CONTROVERSIAL

Now 100 years later, historians wrangle as much about McClellan's place in Civil War history as any of his contemporaries. Middle ground then and now is a narrow strip of land.

But in the spring of '61, McClellan seemed to be the man on the white horse. Gov. William Dennison of Ohio summoned him to Columbus with a view to giving him command of the state's forces. Jacob D. Cox, a state senator and a brigadier general of militia, met McClellan at the railroad station. Cox described McClellan as "rather under medium height, but muscularly formed, with broad shoulders and a well poised head, active and graceful in motion. His whole appearance was quiet and modest, but when drawn out, he showed no lack of confidence in himself."

McClellan accepted command of the Ohio troops with the rank of major general and the next day he and Cox took stock of their equipment.

"We found a few boxes of smooth bore muskets . . . rusted and damaged," Cox wrote. "No belt, cartridge boxes or other accouterments . . . two or three smooth bore field pieces, 6 pounders . . . honey combed by firing of salutes . . . a confused pile of mildewed harness . . . not worth carrying away."

DEVISES STRATEGY

That pile of rubbish was McClellan's store of war material. But he had volunteers, about 10,000 of them, and he ordered up 2,000 copies of Hardee's "Tactics," the Army's standard drill manual. He drew up in a week plans for supplying and equipping Ohio's army. He added a grand strategy plan to win the war which he sent to Gen. Winfield Scott, Army commander. This called for a drive east from Ohio to threaten Richmond on the flank and cooperation with the Army at Washington and another army to march south and open the Mississippi Valley.

Scott answered on May 3 in flattering terms without approving the plan. But Cox thought the plan paved the way for McClellan's appointment on May 13 as major general in the Regular Army. McClellan's territory was the Department of Ohio and part of western Virginia, which later became the new state of West Virginia.

Here McClellan's brilliance in organizing and training armies began to function. Within a matter of days, recruits were drilling at Camp Dennison at Cincinnati. McClellan had moved his headquarters there and was dashing hither and yon on horseback, a handsome figure riding on a "McClellan" saddle which he had perfected from his European study days and which the U.S. Cavalry used until gasoline engines took over from horseflesh.

GRANT — McCLELLAN

One of McClellan's callers in these busy days was Ulysses S. Grant, who crossed the Ohio River from Covington, Ky., where he was visiting his parents. Ex-captain "Sam" Grant was looking for a war job. More than 20 years later, he recalled in his memoirs:

"I had known him slightly at West Point . . . and in the Mexican War. I was in hopes that when he saw me he would offer me a position on his staff. I called on two successive days but failed to see him . . ."

McClellan in his memoirs recounted:

"This was his good luck for had I been there I would no doubt given him a place on my staff, and he probably would have remained with me and shared my fate."

On one of McClellan's inspection tours he came upon two regiments in training at loggerheads on a road because neither of the two inexperienced colonels knew what order to give so they could pass. The situation had progressed to the fist fight stage when McClellan rode up.

"Soldiers! Spare your blows for the enemies of your country," McClellan declaimed. The fights ended, the colonels made up and the two regiments were brigaded together.

'YOUNG NAPOLEON'

Incidents like that piled up until McClellan came to be known as "the young Napoleon" and played up to the name by posing with his hand in his uniform coat in the best "Little Corporal" style.

In a month there would be fighting in the western counties of Virginia across the Ohio from McClellan and he would be there, costumed, made up, self - billed and his lines down pat. And he would win some battles, too. Not big ones, but the newspapers gave them big headlines.

The star of the "young Napoleon" was rising and McClellan was not the man to hide it.

DRAMATIC RESCUES

23 Get Awards For Heroic Acts

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A powerline foreman from Brownfield, Tex., who lowered himself by cable from a helicopter to rescue a teenaged boy from atop a burning grain elevator, was among 23 persons presented bronze medals Friday by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission.

The dramatic rescue took place July 19, 1960, at Brownfield when explosions of grain dust inside a 100-foot storage elevator touched off a fire. Charles Phillip Reeves, a 17-year-old laborer, was trapped inside the head house 50 feet higher than the top of the grain elevator.

Donald Ethington, 23, volunteered and attempted to save the boy by lowering himself 90 feet from an Army helicopter that hovered dangerously over the burning grain elevator. Battling intense heat and dense smoke, Ethington managed to cling to a window of the head house and loop a rope around young Reeves, who by that time was burned badly.

The helicopter then maneuvered so that both Ethington and Reeves were pulled clear of the burning structure. Minutes later, the head house collapsed.

The helicopter lowered both its passengers to the ground and Reeves was taken to a hospital. However, the boy died 16 days later. Four other workmen also were killed in the fire.

Of the other heroes honored by the commission, three gave their lives trying to save others in distress. In addition, two of the medal winners were boys who — despite physical handicaps — saved younger children from drowning in separate incidents at Garland, Tex., and Saratoga Springs, N.Y.

The 23 acts of heroism recognized by the commission occurred in 11 states, with five residents of Texas being cited for heroic deeds. Four bronze medals went to Pennsylvanians; Virginia had three award winners; medals were presented to two residents of North Carolina, Georgia and New York State, while Alabama, South Carolina, Ohio, West Virginia and Oklahoma each had one person cited.

Since 1904, the commission now has presented 4,417 medals and more than $3,500,000 in pecuniary awards.

Saved From Train

On April 1, 1960, G. Edwin Richardson, 16-year-old schoolboy from Hamlet, N.C., saved two soldiers from injury and possible death when their automobile became stalled in the path of an approaching freight train. Richardson rammed his car into the rear of the stalled vehicles, pushing it clear of the tracks.

Richardson then put his car in reverse and leaped to safety with the train only 30 feet away. The automobile backed slowly off the crossing as the train roared by at 25-miles-per-hour.

In Tuscaloosa, Ala., on April 22 the same year, Mrs. Shirley Wharton, 22, a registered nurse, saved the life of an elderly hospital patient who — under sedation — had climbed outside a window onto a ledge 50 feet above the ground.

Mrs. Wharton noticed that the patient, Lewis D. Blair Sr., 71, had crawled onto the ledge. She also crawled through a window and inched along the ledge for more than 100 feet until she reached him. Then she guided the man back to safety through another window.

Those heroes honored posthumously were Raymond E. Beaven Jr., 32, of Norwalk, Ohio; Ivan B. Garrett, 35, of Columbus, Ga., and Joseph P. Simon, 13, of Ithaca, N.Y.

Beaven gave his life trying to save a fellow worker who had fallen into a cider storage tank car at Birmingham, Ohio; Garrett was burned fatally attempting to rescue a woman whose clothing ignited, and young Simon drowned in an effort to save a friend from a similar fate.

JFK, Tunisian Chief Agree On Algeria Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy and President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia agreed Friday that the Algerian problem should be solved peacefully on the basis of self-determination for the Algerians.

A joint communique, issued after the second conference between the two presidents, said that Kennedy and Bourguiba "believe that negotiation and peaceful application of the principle of self-determination are the key to peace in Algeria and to stability in North Africa and the Mediterranean."

The two presidents met for one hour, 15 minutes at the White House. Their conference marked the end of Bourguiba's three-day talks in this capital.

The Communique said: "President Bourguiba defined his policy of nonalignment and friendship with all countries desiring good relations with Tunisia. President Kennedy expressed the support of the United States for the inviolate right of peoples and countries to excercise freedom of choice in the organization of their societies and in the definition of their political attitudes."

SHRIVER IN PAKISTAN

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Sargent Shriver, director of President Kennedy's Peace Corps, arrived Friday for discussions with President Ayub Khan on the possible use of American volunteers on development projects in Pakistan.

Lieck Services Remain Pending

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Friday for Hugh Clayton Lieck, 31, Monroe, who was killed Thursday in an automobile accident on Louisiana Highway 15 near Alto in Richland Parish.

Last rites will be under direction of Darling Funeral Home of Brownsville, Tex., his hometown.

Voice Of Broadway

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Notebook: Andy Williams is taking over for Perry Como while Perry vacations, and Patti Page's feelings are bruised. She thinks she should have been given the assignment . . . Kim Stanley has been carryin' on bravely in "The Far Country" despite severe pain. She's suffering from an impacted wisdom tooth . . . Tony Bennett was enjoined (by the music publisher, Chappell) from singing "Follow Me" during his London engagement at the Pavalle. The song is the throwaway in "Camelot," but the publisher had the legal right to prevent Tony from singing it — and presumably did so because the show isn't due in England until 1963.

Fidel Castro's machine gunners mowed down 1,000 counter-revolutionaries during the past week. He shot one of his own aides for refusing to take part in the executions . . . George Kaplan, co-producer of "Smiling, the Boy Fell Dead," is the off-stage attraction at Uptown Merna Loy to the Cherry Lane Theatre these nights . . . When Sam Spiegel says he'll make Lawrence of Arabia" the biggest and costliest film in motion picture history, pass the pudding. He's had Academy Award director David Lean on his payroll for six months, just scouting locations.

It had to happen. Now that Anna Maria Alberghetti is a smash hit in "Carnival," some members of the company are circulating the rumor that she's temperamental backstage and "difficult to get along with." But if anyone prods it, they'll fix their little signatures to a cast and even affidavit swearing that she is unfailingly gracious, kind and cooperative . . . the standard procedure for the lesser players in a show to accuse the leading lady of being temperamental, and equally standard procedure for them to deny it officially if she gets wind of it.

Hollywood agents report that there are now on a two basis of starlets trying to make the grade — those who dress and make up to look like Liz Taylor, and those who dress and make up to look like Jacqueline Kennedy. . . There's an interesting sidelight to Judy Garland's concert at the Mosque in Newark. On the program will be her talented conductor, Mort Lindsey . . . who some 10 years ago worked at the Mosque as an usher . . . Recently ... ess of Windsor and Mrs. Gilbert Miller turned up beautifully — but ladies were not invited together at the Colony the other day — the Duchess in pink, Mrs. Miller in green.

Tenants at the Osborne, the apartment building at 57th St. and 7th Ave., got the shock of their lives when they learned by mail that the fabulous building will be demolished to make room for a "modern" structure. Among those who'll be forced to relocate are Leonard Bernstein, Dane Clark, Van Cliburn, Sandra Dee, Bobby Darin and Shirley Booth . . . Lucille Ball's new movie is on a budget gross of at least $12,000,000 from the movie version of "Mame," which stars Ingrid Bergman does Bergman ever ... a Doris Day, Rock Hudson and Yves Montand. Yves said he'd be over there ... over here, but this picture may do it for him.

Charles Creed, the couturier, is having his autobiography published soon. In it he tells about a time when Barbara Hutton's husband, Count Reventlow, jealously misunderstood his interest in the hun aside and warned him, "I don't like your attitude toward my wife. If you come her with the idea of seducing her, I want you to know that it would be very unwise to try."

Creed also proudly points out that when Mata Hari faced the firing squad she was wearing a Creed creation.

Go figure this: "The Miracle Worker," a big smash in New York, opened in Chicago and was roundly roasted by the Windy City critics . . . Actress ... teenage daughter of Harwyn Club owner Ed Wynn is ... for a Universal - International screen test . . . Tab Hunter will be watching the charts eagerly to see what happens when two records on Woody Harris' new song, "I Want You To Be Me" — one disc by Bobby Darin, the other by Elvis Presley — should be the popularity contest of the year.

The Leonard Silman Enterprises soon to be announced will incorporate the production of "New Faces of 1961," the New Faces School, a New Faces TV series, a nightclub act, a record company, and a dozen or more entertainment units to play ... supper clubs all over the country. Silman's list of ... impressive . . . Clear the highways for a new melody ... signed to the Blue Grass label. His name is Ford Motors.

Paul Muni turned down an offer to star in the upcoming Broadway show "Kuprin" because he doesn't want to work in the theatre during the hot summer months . . . Jane Powell is kissing her fingers crossed. NBC likes her TV comedy series, but there's a question of finding a time slot.

How To Keep Well

By Theodore R. Van Dellen

HIGH RISK FACTORS IN ARTERIOSCLEROSIS

Aspirin is the latest drug to be added to the products that reduce the level of cholesterol in the blood. Dr. M. Eidlitz of Tel Aviv, Israel, gave it to 10 patients recovering from heart attacks and the blood cholesterol level fell strikingly. He used the equivalent of one 5-grain aspirin tablet four times a day.

MER29, nicotinic acid, female sex hormones, thyroid extract, anticoagulants, plant sterols, and vegetable oils also are used for this purpose. The idea is to keep down the blood cholesterol so arteriosclerosis will be delayed, reversed, or prevented.

Nevertheless, the medical profession is not convinced that lowering the blood cholesterol lessens the chance of having heart attacks or angina pectoris. Furthermore, when the agent is discontinued, the cholesterol level rises. We need to find out why.

To be on the safe side, many physicians have turned to the low fat diet as the most sensible approach as to the problem. Eating less animal fats, cream, butter and ice cream will do no harm and might keep us a bit slimmer. Vegetable oils and fish contain polyunsaturated fatty acids and have the opposite effect. They nullify the adverse action of animal fats on the arteries.

Those most likely to be bothered by high cholesterol and hardening of the arteries usually have other high risk factors that are just as important to treat. Some have a family history of trouble along this line. Others are obese, have high blood pressure, diabetes, gout, low metabolism, or too much cholesterol.

COULD BE DANGEROUS

C. F. L. writes: Are there any radium pills that can be taken at home for cancer of the stomach?

REPLY

No. If there were, the radium could not know the difference between the malignant and normal cells. As a result, the entire gastrointestinal tract would receive radium waves and suffer the consequences. Various "radioactive" remedies have been hucksteered for this and that disease. Recent articles and ads the public against unproved ... of more than $50 million dollars on quack products of this type.

APPETITE SUPPRESSANTS

B. A. T. writes: Do any side effects accompany the use of an appetite depressant?

REPLY

The majority contain the amphetamine type of drugs that stimulate the individual. If the dosage is not correct he may become jittery and nervous and have trouble sleeping.

BLEEDING ULCER

F. A. writes: If a duodenal ulcer bleeds, is the blood always vomited or can it pass thru the intestine?

It usually passes thru the intestinal tract unless hemorrhage is profuse, in which case some blood is vomited.

FOOT SORE

L. H. P. writes: A friend has an open sore on top of his foot where the shoe is laced. Could this come from drinking too much beer?

REPLY

No. More likely causes are tight shoes poor circulation, or malnutrition. Americans spend much more money on alcoholic drinks than on physicians. Your friend may spend so much on beer he has none left for medical attention.

INFECTION AND THE THYROID

J. H. writes: Can a cold make an overactive thyroid more active?

REPLY

REBEL REGIME TO MEET

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP)—The Algerian rebel regime will meet here Monday to choose representatives for the coming peace talks with France, reliable sources said.

President Habib Bourgiba of Tunisia, now in the United States, says the once-postponed talks will begin in a week. He has been the intermediary in the advance negotiations.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Singer Seeks Ranch To Aid Delinquents

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Singer Guy Mitchell is scouting around the West seeking land to use as a ranch for delinquent boys who need a chance to straighten out.

"What I want is a place where kids who have committed their first offense can come to" said Guy, who spends much of his spare time outdoors with horses.

Mitchell, preparing to leave for a nightclub tour in Australia, owns a small ranch near Hollywood but doesn't have enough room to start his boy's camp.

Looking around his property after lunch, Guy pointed to nearby housing developments which may increase the value of his property.

"I figure that after six months or a year, it'll be worth enough to sell and get the money for my new place," he explained.

Mitchell said he wants to buy the ranch with his own money, but hopes service clubs will help defray upkeep costs.

"I could have gotten the land before if I wanted to be phony," he revealed. "To me it would feel phony if I canvassed and raised money to build the school.

"Once I get the land, I want organizations to come in and set up the camp. I'll give them the land. I can't afford to do it alone, but I can oversee it."

Mitchell, costarring this summer in a western TV series called "Whispering Smith" on NBC with Audie Murphy, plans to populate his ranche with orphans and children from broken homes.

"I wouldn't want anybody who is over 20," he said. "In the beginning, I'd use the place for a summer camp with college fellows working as supervisors."

Mitchell is being encouraged in his venture by friends in and out of the entertainment business. His pal Eddie Fisher has offered assistance.

Tulsa Police Nab Fugitive Dale Morris

Detective Harvey Evans said Morris orally admitted the exchange of gunfire with detective Jack Merchant. Evans said Morris told him he had been "ducking around" since the shooting but did not tell officers where he had been.

Morris failed to return to the sprawling Mississippi prison at Parchman early this year when he went to Fort Smith Ark. on a horse baying trip with prison officials.

He told the Mississippi officials he planned to get married, but would return to Parchman in a few days.

Morris was sentenced in 1958 to 12 years for manslaughter in the slaying of a Roy S. Lowman. He pled guilty to the lesser charges after three mistrials on a murder charge.

Merchant had stopped Morris and the woman for questioning. Morris pulled a pistol from his boot and started firing.

Want Ads are for Everybody

Over 30 million families and countless businesses placed nearly 350 million individual classified ads in 1960

The $803 million spent on Want Ads in 1960 was more than that spent for spot and local TV combined, more than that spent on all weekly magazine ads, and more than that spent on all radio advertising. No other advertising works for so many people. Let it work for you!

Third Warrant Issued Here Against Negro

Police said Lewis has returned the money to the Housing Authority.

Bond has been set at $500.

DEMAND CUBA BREAK

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—Thousands of university students went on strike Friday demanding Costa Rica break diplomatic relations with Cuba.

They also picked to stay away from their classes until leaders they identified as Communists are fired, and the Communist newspaper Adelante is closed.

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

DIVIDENDS INCREASE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The number of stock dividend increases in April rose to 49 from 33 a year ago marking the first year-to-year improvement since March 1960, Standard & Poor's Corp. reported Friday. However, the statistical agency said that in other respects the dividend news differed little from developments over the six months.

GOOD INDICATION

One of President Kennedy's chief economic advisers said all signs indicate the nation is climbing out of the recession. Kermit Gordon, said that although the recession probably hit bottom in March the nation still has not reached the desirable rate of economic growth.

PLANS TO BUY

Fairchild Camera & Instrument Corp. revealed plans to buy for an undisclosed amount of cash two Los Angeles companies, Curtiss Laboratories and Circle Weld Manufacturing Co. Circle Weld makes heat exchanger components and Curtis Laboratories optical and photographic equipment.

AUTOS UP

Auto production this week climbed 10.5 per cent over the previous week but was still down 11.1 per cent from last year's tempo, according to Ward's automotive reports.

COTTON

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed 10 cents a bale lower to 60 cents higher Friday.

New crop months advanced on light trade and commission house buying.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Trade in soybean futures split down the middle Friday with old crop contracts again under heavy selling pressure and the new crop months moving ahead on buying described as investment demand.

The May and July deliveries shifted over a broad range, all on the downside of previous closes. At times, May was off as much as eight cents or more and July down about six cents in early dealings before recovering about five cents.

The grains were slightly easier generally until short covering for the weekend in the final few minutes boosted a few contract to the plus side.

Soybeans ended 5 cents lower to 2 cents higher, May $3.11 11/4; wheat ⅜s lower to ¼ higher, May $1.37⅝-⅝; corn ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher, May $1.11¾-⅞; oats ⅛-⅜s higher, May 65½; rye unchanged to 1 cent higher, May $1.11⅞.

Stocks Close Session On Mixed Trend

Volume which ran ahead of the prior session most of the day tapered off on the late decline. Turnover, nevertheless amounted to a robust 4,930,000 shares against 5,350,000 the day before.

The Standard & Poor's composite 500 stock index showed a gain of 0.03 on the day, reflecting strength in electronics, defense issues stocks and a number of special situations.

However the Dow-Jones industrial average finished at 690.67 for a loss of 1.58, reflecting losses of 1¾ in Avco, 1¼ in American Telephone, 1¾ in Johns-Manville and a gain of 1¾ in Du Pont in a mixed chemical sector where High Voltage America dropped 2 points.

Dow-Jones rails finished at 113.86 off 0.26 and utilities 111.81 down 0.19.

A total of 1,301 issues crossed the tape — seven more than Thursday and 25 more than last Friday.

Of the issues traded 615 advanced, 121 to new highs, and 490 declined, seven to new lows.

Fairchild Engine & Airplane was the most active issue, rising up ¾ point on 119,000 as long-standing rumors of an important big contract continued to circulate in market circles.

Liquor stocks took second and third most active honors with Schenley up a point and Publicker up 1¾.

Leading steel and motor stocks were narrowly mixed. Oils, building materials, drugs and liquor stocks improved and coal, tobacco and airline shares firmed for the second consecutive session, reflecting a bright business outlook in these industries.

On the American Exchange prices were irregularly higher on a turnover of 3,950,000 shares, 200,000 less than in the previous session. Trading leaders were in the electronics sectors where Fairchild Camera was up 3¼, Cubic 3 and Technical Materials new stock 4.

LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO (AP) — With another large Friday supply of 6,500 head on sale, the butcher hog market was steady to 25 cents lower Friday in active trading.

Most of the setback was on weights over 250 lbs and the 190-220 lb mixed No. 1 and 2 grades cleared at $17.75-18 while the 190-230 lb mixed 1-3 and 2-3 grades sold at $17-17.75. Heavier weights were $15.85-17 and sows $13.75-and sows $13.75-15.75.

The supply of 38,000 head for the week compared with last week's total of 39,500.

Offerings of slaughter steers, heifers, vealers and bulls were too light for a market test and the sheep trade also was negligible.

THIS IS A CANDID photo of President Kennedy made during Friday's news conference. The Chief Executive said the government is considering the question of supplying military forces against Communist encroachment in Southern Viet Nam. He also hailed this nation's first manned shot into space and pledged "a substantially larger effort" in that field. (AP Wirephoto)

ON STOCK MARKET

Impact Of Space Triumph Slight

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States' space triumph had only slight impact on the stock market.

Dow-Jones industrials narrowly topped Friday's opening level with the Mercury capsule bringing word that the American astronaut had made the trip safely. Prices generally then drifted lower.

Brokers said the effect of the nation's most notable space accomplishment were made likely to be felt over an extended period.

Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co. said he believed the flight's success will stimulate additional spending for aerospace projects. This, of course, will mean more business for the companies involved in producing the products that go into space vehicles.

Martin Gilbert of Van Alstyne, Noel & Co. felt that it "gives us a more solid foundation. It shows we are catching up and our efforts are not going for naught."

They and others felt that the major influences on the market at this time are the business recovery and the international situation.

Wyetzner said two tests are ahead for the market — 700 on the Dow Jones industrial average on the upside and 670 on the downside. A breakthrough of either level will determine which way the market goes, he said.

White said he expected the average to hit a new high next week and perhaps go to 710 or 715 by the last week in May or the first week in June.

The stock market seems in delicate balance as investors and speculations ponder the weighty implications of a possible major shift in our foreign policy, comments B. K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohu & Stetson. He believes the Kennedy administration is going to become more aggressive and that the people will support it.

"Bearing these factors in mind," he says, "it seems fairly clear that investment sentiment is undergoing a change. We do not accept, however, the superficial view that this change must be in the direction of bearishness. To us it would appear that the superficial reaction is over and was reflected in the late April sell-off and the recent hesitation.

"The obvious prime beneficiaries of a more vigorous foreign policy — the aircraft and missile stocks — have already broken out of what looked like possible top formations and have made new highs. The secondary beneficiaries — steels, mining companies, machine tools and automobiles — seem about to follow suit."

Teacher Needs Cited In Meet At Grambling

GRAMBLING (Special) — "The More Good Teachers we have the more quickly can we solve all our problems," declared Dr. William M. Alexander of Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn., in the featured address at the ninth Biennial conference of the National Association of Jeanes teachers which ended a 3-day meet here Friday.

"Teaching is the most important procession in the world," Dr. Alexander said. "This is true because we now recognize that all of the problems of the world will be solved by a process of education."

Using as his subject, images of great teachers, Alexander, who is chairman of the education department at the Tennessee school, said that there is a greater interest in education than ever before in the history of civilization.

Addressing his remarks to an overflow audience of nearly 3,000 persons in the Grambling College auditorium, the speaker said teachers welcome the challenge of the new interest in education.

RIVERS, HARBORS

Three Local Men To Attend Meet

A three - man local delegation will attend the National Rivers and Harbors Congress in Washington, D.C. May 24-27, it was announced yesterday.

Delegates from here will include Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez, City of Monroe, Mayor J. Allan Norris, City of West Monroe, and Commercial Manager M. D. Tarver, Utilities Commission, Monroe.

Rodriguez, who attended the congress last year, pointed out that the session was important to Monroe and West Monroe because of the port potential here.

POLLUTION CITED

"The Congress is an excellent place where public officials can learn how to initiate projects," Rodriguez said. "It is a good place to submit projects for the approval of the projects committee."

Rodriguez said legislation was pending in Congress that would offer "adequate" matching funds for municipalities on the construction of sewer disposal plants.

"Since Monroe and West Monroe have pollution problems, it is important that we keep abreast of all developments involving water," he explained.

Tarver serves on the board of directors of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit and is currently a member of a pollution committee studying the pollution problem here.

Other delegates from Louisiana will include Kenneth E. Biglane, director of the Louisiana Stream Control Commission, and Calvin Watts, assistant director of the Department of Public Works.

Rodriguez said all types of water programs will be aired at the congress, but he emphasized that pollution will be a major item.

Three Negroes Are Charged In Burglaries Here

They are Allen Brown, 28, Deltresa Brown, 21, and Charles Harding, 25, all of Winnsboro.

Sheriff officials charged that the three broke into the club, twice between April 14 and April 23.

Ouachita Choir Gets Superior Rate At Festival

The Ouachita Parish High School choir and ensemble have received superior rating at a state music festival, held Friday at Louisiana Tech in Ruston. The festival was in conjunction with a meeting of the State Music Educators' Association.

The local groups received the superior rating over 21 other organizations from throughout the state. All 22 of the school organizations had received a superior rating at district festivals earlier in the year.

Mrs. Lloydelle Thomas is director of both the choir and ensemble. The choir is composed of 52 voices, while the ensemble has 15 students.

JUDGES

Judges for the contest were Leonard Metts of Memphis, Tenn., Norman Leighton, Jackson, Miss., Frank McKinley, North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, Texas, and Sue Evans.

The four judges without exception had high praise for both the choir and ensemble.

Mrs. Evans said the performance by the 52-voice choir was "by far the best I've heard today." (The Ouachita group was the final organization to appear in the day-long competition.)

The choir sang "The Last Words of David" by Randall Thompson; "Hallelujah" from the "Mount of Olives" by Beethoven; and "El Cubanchero" by Wilson.

Drawing equal praise from all of the judges was the 15-voice ensemble, which rendered "Sing, Sing A Song" by Vecchi; "Roots and Leaves" by Williams; and "It's A Most Unusual Day" by McHugh.

Leighton said the ensemble performed in a sound which "compares with some, and excells many other professional groups on television and the concert stage." To Mrs. Thomas he wrote that "it is a privilege to hear your work."

Metts cited the group as "one of the finest groups I have had the pleasure to hear."

Boy Scouts Will Be Hosted Here For Conference

An estimated 250 to 300 Boy Scouts and their leaders from Area 5-D, Order of the Arrow, will be hosted Saturday and Sunday by the Ouachita Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America, at their annual conference at Camp Ki-Ro-Li in West Monroe.

Jack Pankey, Ouachita Valley Council executive, said yesterday that the two - day encampment would be made up of honor campers, members of the Order of the Arrow, from virtually every troop in the two - state, Arkansas - Louisiana, region which composes Area 5-D.

Registration gets underway at 10 Saturday morning and the program will run until approximately 2 p.m. Sunday. Officers for the coming year will be elected and announced at the close of the conference, Pankey added.

Waiver Signed For Extradition

McMelland was in custody of the Ouachita Parish sheriff department after being transferred here from Union Parish by the sheriff department there. McMelland's residence is believed to be in Georgia.

GEORGE ROREX

Rorex Head Of Downtown C Of C Group

In addition, he has served as chairman of the education committee and served as a member on the river water committee.

He has been active in civic affairs here, serving with the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, YMCA and Rotary Club. He is a member of the Ouachita Parish School Board.

Last Rites For Mrs. Alexander Slated Sunday

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday in the Central Baptist Church for Mrs. Emette Hackney Alexander, 52, who died Thursday afternoon after an illness of about two days.

Officiating will be the Rev. Charles B. Littleton, with interment to follow in Memorial Park Cemetery under direction of Peters Funeral Home.

Mrs. Alexander, of 4301 South Grand St., was a native of Pollock but had resided in Monroe nearly all her life. She was a member of the Central Baptist Church.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Lottie Hackney, Monroe; three daughters, Mrs. Don Lanier and Mrs. Paul Waldon, both of Monroe, and Mrs. James McGuire, of West Monroe; a sister, Mrs. Audrey Edwards, Monroe; a brother, Lonnie Hackney, of Shreveport; and eight grandchildren.

The body will lie in state at the funeral home until near time of services.

Pallbearers will be Harold McGriff, Robert Dupree, Speedy Rhodes, Grady Grafton, S. A. Mohundro and Toby Talley.

Smith Continues In Chamber Post For Fourth Year

Monroe Chamber of Commerce president Garland Shell yesterday announced the continuation of Louis D. Smith for the fourth consecutive year in his post as chairman of the chamber's aviation committee.

Calling Smith a major force in the development of air transportation here, Shell also pointed to service on other chamber bodies to his credit, including presently the legislative and membership committees. In addition, he is in his third year on the board of directors.

A native Monroyan and a graduate of the city school system, Smith received his law degree from Louisiana State University and has been a local practicing attorney since 1949.

Father of two daughters and a son, he is a member of the Congregation B'Nai Isreal Jewish Church.

Funeral Slated To Be Sunday For Mrs. Mann

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home for Mrs. Caroline Mann, 64, who died Thursday following a brief illness.

Officiating will be the Rev. Alden Presley, of Baton Rouge, with interment to be in Hasley Cemetery in West Monroe.

Mrs. Mann, of 911 Mississippi St., was a native of Bradley County, Ark., but had lived in Monroe for the past ten years.

Survivors include her husband, James M. Mann, Monroe; four sons, William G. Mann, of Bastrop, and Woodrow, James and Charles Mann, all of Monroe; three daughters, Mrs. Mary McGuire, New Orleans, Mrs. Dorothy Nelson, of Minnesota, and Mrs. Betty Bowers, McGregor, Tex.; a brother, Walter Castelberry of Bastrop; and 17 grandchildren.

Parish Road Bill Set For Legislature

A bill which would provide Ouachita parish with $10,000 extra for road building is slated to come up before the fiscal session of the state legislature, convening Monday.

Police jurors received letters Friday from state Police Jury Association executive secretary W. A. Breedlove, asking them to recommend four bills to Ouachita Representatives Mike John and Lawrence Gibbs, and Senator Jamar Adcock.

It would increase the amount spent by the Louisiana Department of Highways in each parish on parish roads from $20,000 to $30,000 yearly. Reason for the increase is higher costs for road building material and freight charges.

The other three bills are:

1. "Outright repeal of Act 236 of 1960, which took away money collected through fines and forfeitures that ordinarily goes into the general fund but under this act can be spent only by authorization of the Judges and District Attorney."

2. Appropriation of $405,000 to repay costs of voting machines, for Caddo, Calcasieu, East Baton Rouge, Jefferson and Orleans parishes.

3. Renewal of regular appropriation of $30,000 to each parish for roads and fencing.

District Judge Endorses Jail Extension Here

Fourth District Judge Jo Heard went on record Friday as endorsing the proposed $300,000 jail extension, which comes up for a vote Tuesday.

He pointed out that Ouachita's population has soared from 30,319 when the present jail was built in 1929 to 47,359 at the present time — an increase of more than 200 per cent.

The increased population means an increase in offenses and a need for additional jail facilities, he noted.

This is his statement:

"The people of Ouachita Parish in the near future will be presented to them for their approval, a proposition as to whether or not a penal farm will be established to provide for the care of prisoners.

"The courthouse was constructed in 1925 with a jail to house 60 prisoners. According to 1920 census, the population of Ouachita Parish was 30,319. In 1930 the population had grown to 31,337. According to the 1960 census, the population is now 47,359.

"Since its construction, our facilities have not been expanded. The crime rate of Ouachita Parish is no greater than any other parish, based upon its population, but with the increased population, there is a need for an expansion of our facilities to handle prisoners.

"Our parish jail facilities have been in need of expansion for many years and with the continuous growth of Ouachita Parish there must be, of necessity, an expansion of our jail facilities.

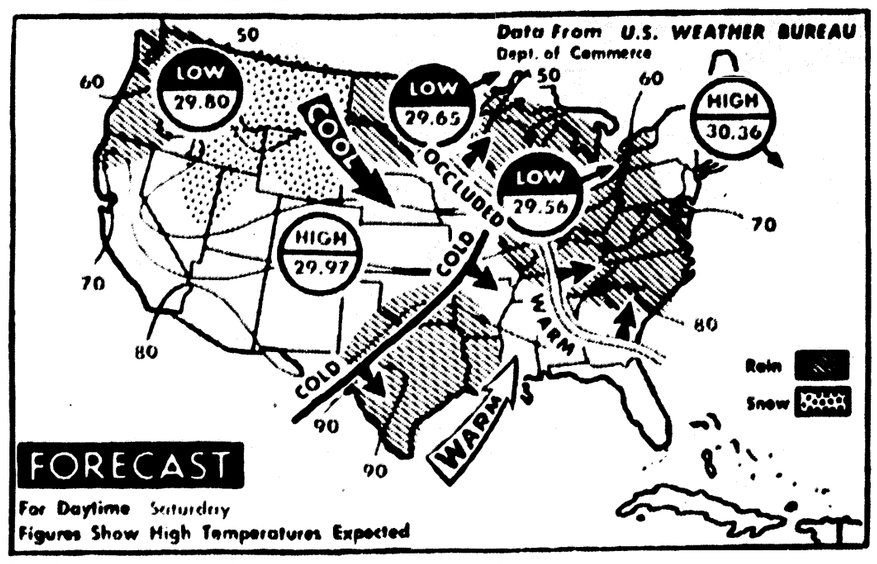
"In my opinion the penal farm at the present time would be an answer to this need."

Teachers Recall Future Queen

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP)—Schoolmates and teachers at the Bourne School remember the future queen of Jordan as an outstanding, notably intelligent, attractive girl athlete and a rock 'n' roll dancer.

Now 20, Tom Gardiner is to be married to Jordan's King Hussein and the school people are sending a silver bowl as a wedding present.

She attended Bourne when her father was a British colonel in Malaya.



RAIN IS FORECAST Saturday from northern Plains into upper and mid Mississippi Valley through Ohio and Tennessee valleys and into mid Atlantic states. Thunderstorms are expected to hit southern Plains. Showers are also likely for Pacific northwest. Snow flurries are expected in parts of Rockies. It should be warmer in the Atlantic coast states and in parts of central Plains. It will be cooler in Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Big Day Ends For Shepard In Bahamas

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—This is Alan B. Shepard's day that began at this Florida missile base, sent him to outer space, and ended at an island in the Bahamas.

He went to sleep Thursday night at 9:30 after watching television.

6:30 a.m. — Capsule is closed on the space suit. He is now alone. For the next three hours he will sit motionless, listening to the countdown.

9:37 a.m. — The cherry picker crane moved to help Shepard enter the capsule is an emergency is called for.

Now he feels the force of zero gravity. In accordance with the rocket charts and over the Atlantic and Shepard notes that the engine has burned out, the escape tower in front of him is jettisoned. Now he extends the periscope to get a view of the earth below. And for nearly five minutes he feels the strange world of weightlessness.

9:51 a.m. — The words begin to come a little hard, grunts as he strains against the sudden sensing of re-entering the earth's blanket of air. "Nine G, coming down OK."

"Peak G, 11, OK."

About 9:43 he reports he is at 50,000 feet, coming down by parachute.

9:49 a.m. — Splash. The space capsule is in the water. Whirling helicopter blades are right overhead, and he asks to be taken out of the capsule. He is. And the helicopter attaches to the space capsule and carries it up too.

10:01 a.m. — Shepard steps out of the helicopter to the deck of the aircraft carrier Lake Champlain to the cheers of the crew to reach back into the space capsule to greet him. He was safe to get his helmet.

Soviets Notice U.S. Space Feat

LONDON (AP)—The first whisper of Soviet praise for the American space achievement came Friday night from the anonymous science correspondent of Moscow radio.

In an English-language broadcast, he declared: "This is a notable achievement by American scientists."

He then added: "It gives us reason to hope that in due course they will be able to put a manned space ship into orbit around the earth, as the Soviet Union did recently."
